Britain The European Community:

Britain in the European Community, 1983      Britain and European Integration Since 1945 David Gowland, Arthur Turner, Alex Wright, 2009-10-30 This book provides both a comprehensive introduction and a perceptive examination of Britain's relations with the European Community and the European Union since 1945 combining an historical account with political analysis to illustrate the changing and multifaceted nature of British and European politics Few issues in British politics since 1945 have generated such heated controversy as Britain's approach to the process of European integration associated with the European Union The long running debate on the subject has not only played a major part in the downfall of prime ministers and other leading political figures but has also exposed major fault lines within governments and caused deep and rancorous divisions within and between the major political parties This highly contested issue has given rise to bitter campaigning in the press and between pressure groups and it has bemused confused and divided the public at large Key questions addressed include Why has Europe had such an explosive impact on British politics What impelled British policymakers to join the European Community and to undertake one of the radical if not the most radical changes in modern British history What have been the perceived advantages and disadvantages of British membership of the European Union Why has British membership of the European Union rarely attracted a national consensus Engaging with both academic and public debates about Britain and the European Union this volume is essential reading for all students of British history British politics and European politics      Britain's Failure to Enter the European Community, 1961-63 George Wilkes, 2013-05-13 The essays collected here outline a number of factors which made the EC too young to be able to assimilate Britain's important interests and the British over optimistic in their approach to negotiations with the Community The role of conflict over Western strategy and European political union in the breakdown of the negotiations is re assessed and the negotiations over agriculture and the Commonwealth are revealed in an entirely new light      Britain and the European Communities Great Britain. Central Office of Information. Reference Division, 1964      Britain within the European Community A. M. El-Agraa, 1983-08-01      Absent at the Creation Christopher Lord, 1996 This book looks at the decision of two British governments not to take part in the European coal and steel community which was the first element in the construction of the EC It concludes that they remained aloof because of a belief that the British state was of a different domestic and international character to European neighbours      Britain in the European Community Great Britain. Central Office of Information. Reference Division, British Information Services, 1975      Britain and the European Union David Gowland, 2022-04-07 This engaging and concise new edition offers the student and general reader a compact readable treatment of British membership of the European Union EU from 1973 up until the present day and Brexit with detailed analysis of the period 1945 1972 accounting for Britain's absence from the formation of the EU It provides a highly distilled and accessible analysis and overview of some of the parameters and recurring features of Britain's membership of the European Union touching on all the major facets of membership at this critical time in Britain's relationship with Europe. Key features of the new edition examines the constant and changing character of British membership of the EU, discusses the problematical and often paradoxical features of EU membership, familiarises the reader with both academic and public debates about the subject, offers thematic treatment of all aspects of policy and attitudes towards the EU, significantly restructured and updated to include the origins of the decision to hold a referendum on UK membership of the EU, the campaign, explanations for its outcome and the course, substance and implications of the UK-EU Brexit negotiations. Some countries immediately started to meet and talk about what could be done to prevent Europe from wars like the one that just ended. The idea of forming a federation with one government as head was not new. Even in earlier stages in history, countries tried to unify Europe. At that time, the means of reaching the aim were invasion and elimination. The war led by Hitler was the last attempt to reach uniformity by force. The smaller European countries started to talk about integration and about forming a customs union as a first step. Great Britain, still a leading power in world trade and politics, did not feel as a part of Europe. Politics after World War II to 1958 were mainly dominated by the relationship between Great Britain and continental Europe. Mainly the Six wanted an integration of Western Europe. Britain did not feel comfortable with the idea of being part of a union and did not want to join the other states. They did not cooperate; contrariwise, they worked against the efforts of the other states. Great Britain jammed the attempts to form close mergers, so the formation of the European Economic Community and the concept of a common market was hard to get through by the other European countries. The aim of this paper is to give an overview about the processes of forming economic and political institutions and the attitude of Great Britain to the Continent between 1945 and 1958. The attempt is made to give reasons for Britain's attitude and its decision against a common market. The most important events during this period will be researched and evaluated. However, this is just an approach; it is not po
