British Theatre Design:

British Theatre Design John Goodwin, 1998 With more than 300 photographs showcasing the work of over 130 designers each image accompanied by the artist's own notes this collection presents the best most comprehensive overview of modern English theatrical style These magnificent sketches stage sets and costumes come from drama musicals ballet and opera They include Alison Chitty's suspended golden representation of the heavens for several Shakespeare plays Patrick Robertson's and Rosemary Vercoe's modern day conception of Rigoletto and John Napier's elaborate futuristic creation for Starlight Express British Theatre Design 1979-1983, 1983 Make Space!, 1996 The Human Stage John Orrell, 2009-06-18 This book describes the theatres of the time of Shakespeare and Ben Jonson in the light of the contemporary architectural thought and building design John Orrell incorporates recent discoveries about the structure of theatres such as the Red Lion playhouse 1567 the Christ Church Theatre Oxford 1605 and the Paved Court Theatre Somerset House 1632 in a re-examination of old assumptions about their design and origins Orrell shows that the first public theatres exemplified by the Globe on the Bankside were fully realised architectural ideas not ad hoc improvisations Indoor playhouses such as the Blackfriars and the Cockpit Drury Lane show clear signs of having been influenced by the theatre scheme of Sebastiano Serlio a scheme which is human in scale methodical in development and Roman in plan Serlio's scheme is identified as a common link between the great public theatres of Shakespeare's time the major private theatres and the Court masques designed by Inigo Jones The story of the early stages is thus more coherent and more interesting than has been supposed The book is extensively illustrated with contemporary views of London theatre plans and scene designs
