“Always be full of joy
in the Lord.
I say it again—
rejoice!”

The Psychology and Economics of Happiness Lok Sang Ho,2013-10-30 Much attention has been given to the economics of everyday life which typically applies economic principles to the analysis of the different choices that people face under different situations Yet there are hardly any books on the economics of life an economics that takes the finite lifespan as the starting point and that looks at how one can maximize the subjective value from life given the constraint of the limited lifespan In this volume Lok Sang Ho suggests that the lack of progress in happiness among developed countries despite significant economic growth is due to a deficit of mental goods rather than a lack of material goods The author stresses the role of culture and mental habits in determining the efficacy of gaining mental goods which includes love a sense of security and autonomy contentment self esteem self acceptance and freedom from anxiety Drawing on empirical research the book explores how to invest work and consume from a whole life perspective arguing that every action consumption investment or work should enhance the total quality of life This overriding concern about life itself is known as love The Psychology and Economics of Happiness uses the analytical framework of economists on a subject studied by positive psychologists drawing both from empirical evidence and from psychological literature It will be of interest to researchers and academics interested in economic and positive psychology as well as those from related fields keen to learn more about living fuller happier lives
