Contours of a People Nicole St-Onge, Carolyn Podruchny, Brenda Macdougall, 2014-12-18 What does it mean to be Metis How do the Metis understand their world and how do family community and location shape their consciousness Such questions inform this collection of essays on the northwestern North American people of mixed European and Native ancestry who emerged in the seventeenth century as a distinct culture Volume editors Nicole St Onge Carolyn Podruchny and Brenda Macdougall go beyond the concern with race and ethnicity that takes center stage in most discussions of Metis culture to offer new ways of thinking about Metis identity Geography mobility and family have always defined Metis culture and society The Metis world spanned the better part of a continent and a major theme of Contours of a People is the Metis conception of geography not only how Metis people used their environments but how they gave meaning to place and developed connections to multiple landscapes Their geographic familiarity physical and social mobility and maintenance of family ties across time and space appear to have evolved in connection with the fur trade and other commercial endeavors

These efforts and the cultural practices that emerged from them have contributed to a sense of community and the nationalist sentiment felt by many Metis today Writing about a wide geographic area the contributors consider issues ranging from Metis rights under Canadian law and how the Library of Congress categorizes Metis scholarship to the role of women in maintaining economic and social networks The authors emphasis on geography and its power in shaping identity will influence and enlighten Canadian and American scholars across a variety of disciplines The Indians of British Columbia Harry Bertram Hawthorn,1958 Capital and Labour in the British Columbia Forest Industry, 1934-74 Gordon Hak,2011-11-01 The history of British Columbia s economy in the twentieth century is inextricably bound to the development of the forest industry In this comprehensive study Gordon Hak approaches the forest industry from the perspectives of workers and employers examining the two main sets of institutions that structured the relationship during the Fordist era the companies and the unions Drawing on theories of the labour process Fordism and discursive subjectivity Hak relates daily routines of production and profit making to broader forces of unionism business ideology ecological protest technological change and corporate concentration The struggle of the small business sector to survive in the face of corporate growth the history of the industry on the Coast and in the Interior the transformations in capital labour relations during the period government forest policy and the forest industry s encounter with the emerging environmental movement are all considered in this eloquent analysis With its critical historical perspective Capital and Labour in the British Columbia Forest Industry will be essential reading for anyone interested in the business natural resource political social and labour history of the province The British Columbia Gazette British Columbia,1928 Geographical Gazetteer of British Columbia British Columbia.
