Railway Photographic Advertising in Britain, 1900-1939 Alexander Medcalf, 2018-03-06 This book explores the phenomenal resources dedicated to understanding and encouraging passengers to consume travel from 1900 to 1939 analysing how place and travel were presented for sale Using the Great Western Railway as a chief case study as well as a range of its competitors both on and off the rails Alexander Medcalf unravels the complex and ever changing processes behind corporate sales communications This volume analyses exactly how the company pictured passengers in the countryside at the seaside in the urban landscape and in the company s vehicles This thematic approach brings transport and business history thoroughly in line with tourism and leisure history as well as studies in visual culture

Britain and the Sea Glen O'Hara, 2010-06-30 O Hara presents the first general history of Britons relationship with the surrounding oceans from 1600 to the present day This all encompassing account covers individual seafarers ship borne migration warfare and the maritime economy as well as the British people s maritime ideas and self perception throughout the centuries

Seaside 100 Kathryn Ferry,2020-03-20 Sandcastles donkeys piers and sticks of rock Beach huts paddle steamers promenade shelters and ice cream cones Our modern seaside is the sum of its parts and all those parts have their history This book explores the best loved features of our favourite holiday destinations each object and building adding its own layer to the story of our shared seaside heritage Using a mixture of historic images and modern photographs the book takes a roughly chronological journey through the things that have made our seaside distinctive The places where we have chosen to take our holidays for the past three hundred years have been transformed from mere stretches of coastline but they are not like inland towns Inside these pages can be found a celebration of all that makes our seaside special

Model Britain David Lund,2024-10-22 Throughout the twentieth century architectural models served as the miniature playgrounds in which the future of Britain s built environment was imagined and in drawing from the evidence provided by those models today this book considers how architects planners and civil engineers thought about that future by presenting a history of yesterday s dreams of tomorrow told through architectural models Focused not on the making of architectural models but rather the optimistic and utopian visions they were made to communicate this book examines the possible futures put forward by 120 models made by Thorp the oldest and most prolific firm of architectural modelmakers in Britain in order to reveal a century of evolving ideas about how we might live work relax and move From depictions of unbuilt city masterplans to those of seemingly ordinary shopping centres and motorways the models featured trace a progression of the architectural social political technological and economic influences that shaped the design of Britain s buildings transport infrastructure and its towns and cities during a century of relentless change Illustrated with over 130 photographs this book will appeal to academics and historians as well as anyone with an interest in architectural models and the history of Britain s twentieth century built environment

Golfdom ,1929 The Seaside, Health and the Environment in England and Wales Since 1800 John Hassan,2003 The seaside has always held a special position in British history as a place of rest relaxation and recuperation Over the last 200 years many have made their way to the coast attracted by the long sunshine hours the clean ozone charged air and the opportunities for bathing in and even drinking sea water Although the early health resort ideal began to give way to more pleasure orientated themes in the nineteenth century the seaside holiday was still regarded by many as a wholesome and invigorating break from inland urban life well into the twentieth century Yet with ever increasing numbers of visitors and rising levels of coastal pollution this was by no means a forgone conclusion The Seaside Health and the Environment in England and Wales since 1800 explores the ways in which English seaside resorts continually reinvented themselves to take account of contemporary trends in popular leisure and maintain their hold on the public s imagination Particular account is paid to the interwar years when new obsessions with outdoor activities such as sunbathing and tanning were purposefully adopted by the industry to define the modern image of the resort holiday For these and other reasons the seaside holiday reached new peaks of popularity in the 1930s and 1950s yet this very success placed enormous pressures on the environmental amenities that people came to enjoy As this work shows environmental stresses were manifold particularly pollution of the resorts prime assets their beaches As such serious questions are raised concerning why it took such a long time for a determined effort to be made to reverse beach pollution and the lessons to be learned regarding the impact of negative images of the coast as a zone of danger and infection A
