Lightning

What Causes Lightning?

Lightning is caused by the movement of water droplets and ice crystals in a cumulonimbus cloud. These droplets and ice crystals are pushed together and they get stuck together. This makes the cloud heavier and it starts to rain. The lightning strikes the water because the water is a good conductor of electricity. The sea is a large body of water, so it has a lot of water in it. This means that the lightning can travel through the water and reach the fish.

If positive things build up on the ground beneath the cloud, attracted to the negative things in the bottom of the cloud. The ground under these conditions causes lightning to strike up. This, however, will happen, usually not over water. The ground things moving up from the ground connects with the negative things starting from down the cloud, and a spark of lightning starts.

Amazing Facts about Lightning

- 1. A lightning bolt is about 2000 degrees Celsius — roughly as hot as the sun.
- 2. Lightning strikes more than 2 million times a day worldwide — that's about 100 strikes per second.
