Development Deprivation And Human Rights Violation:

Development, Deprivation, and Human Rights Violation P. M. Katare, B. C. Barik, 2002 The scenario in rural India is getting complex day by day Rural development projects appear to be highly ineffective in eliminating poverty and unemployment As a consequence human rights violations are becoming everyday phenomena in the countryside With the encouragement of privatization of resources the multinational companies are entering into the rural hinterlands to exploit these resources The problem will become more serious and worrying in the years to come This comprehensive volume examines the emerging seriousness in respect of rural development activities and assures the values of human rights to the masses of rural India It also tries to locate the common agreement among the contributors visualizing the ground realities on rural development and human rights violations through micro macro analysis It is hoped that this volume will generate an intellectual debate on this vital issue of social concern among thinkers and policy makers

Developmental Anthropology Gaya Pandey, 2008 Development, Displacement, and Marginalisation Ranjana Ray, 2011 Papers presented at a seminar on Marginalisation in urban and rural contexts of India development displacement and social justice held at the Asiatic Society during 8-10 March 2007 Negotiating Marginality Mahana Rajakishor, 2019-03-01 Providing a critical ethnography of five different tribal movements fighting against the mega industrialization projects in Odisha India the book presents a thick description of the confrontation of the tribals to the authoritative forces of state domination This confrontation a counter hegemonic discourse is neither antagonistic to change nor anti to development but rather in fact the author argues that the tribals are the subaltern citizens who aspire for not only more material and economic prosperity but also freedom freedom from domination and deprivation The book therefore seeks to answer one important question how do the tribals appropriate marginality in their everyday lives in challenging domination and celebrating their desires wishes anticipations and material prosperity as well as in coping with the ruins of frustration and suffering Drawing on long term ethnographic fieldwork carried over a decade 2006-16 this book provides empirical evidences and conceptual explorations on the resistance of subaltern citizens against domination The author challenges current theories of social movements which claim that a cultural critique of the development paradigm is writ large in the political actions of those marginalized by development tribals who lived in harmony with nature combining reverence for nature with the sustainable management of resources On the other hand questioning the established notion of marginality as a problem the author re-visits marginality as a possible site that nourishes the capacity of the tribals to resist and to imagine and create a new world The complexity of tribal politics then cannot be reduced to an opposition between development and resistance The book therefore persuades us to re-examine the politics of representation within the ideology of progressive movements Please note Taylor Francis does not sell or distribute the Hardback in India Pakistan Nepal Bhutan Bangladesh and Sri Lanka
