Subjectivity and Selfhood Dan Zahavi,2008-08-29

What is a self Does it exist in reality or is it a mere social construct or is it perhaps a neurologically induced illusion The legitimacy of the concept of the self has been questioned by both neuroscientists and philosophers in recent years Countering this in Subjectivity and Selfhood Dan Zahavi argues that the notion of self is crucial for a proper understanding of consciousness He investigates the interrelationships of experience self awareness and selfhood proposing that none of these three notions can be understood in isolation Any investigation of the self Zahavi argues must take the first person perspective seriously and focus on the experiential givenness of the self Subjectivity and Selfhood explores a number of phenomenological analyses pertaining to the nature of consciousness self and self experience in light of contemporary discussions in consciousness research Philosophical phenomenology as developed by Husserl Heidegger Sartre Merleau Ponty and others not only addresses crucial issues often absent from current debates over consciousness but also provides a conceptual framework for understanding subjectivity Zahavi fills the need given the recent upsurge in theoretical and empirical interest in subjectivity for an account of the subjective or phenomenal dimension of consciousness that is accessible to researchers and students from a variety of disciplines His aim is to use phenomenological analyses to clarify issues of central importance to philosophy of mind cognitive science developmental psychology and psychiatry By engaging in a dialogue with other philosophical and empirical positions says Zahavi phenomenology can demonstrate its vitality and contemporary relevance Being in Flux Rein Raud,2021-08-20 Reality exists independently of human observers but does the same apply to its structure Realist ontologies usually assume so according to them the world consists of objects these have properties and enter into relations with each other more or less as we are accustomed to think of them Against this view Rein Raud develops a radical process ontology that does not credit any vantage point any scale or speed of being any range of cognitive faculties with the privilege to judge how the world really is In his view what we think of as objects are recast as fields of constitutive tensions cross sections of processes never in complete balance but always striving for it and always reconfiguring themselves accordingly The human self is also understood as a fluctuating field not limited to the mind but distributed all over the body and reaching out into its environment with different constituents of the process constantly vying for control The need for such a process philosophy has often been voiced but rarely has there been an effort to develop it in a systematic and rigorous manner that leads to original accounts of identity continuity time change causality agency and other topics Throughout his new book Raud engages with an unusually broad range of philosophical schools and debates from New Materialism and Object Oriented Ontology to both phenomenological and analytical philosophy of mind from feminist philosophy of science to neurophilosophy and social ontology Being in Flux will be of interest to students and scholars in philosophy and the humanities generally and to anyone interested in current debates about realism materialism and ontology Apologetics and the Eclipse of Mystery James J.
