Early Warning:

Earthquake Early Warning Systems Paolo Gasparini, Gaetano Manfredi, Jochen Zschau, 2007-08-10 During the past few decades of the 20th and the first years of the present Century economic losses and human casualties due to natural disasters increased exponentially on our planet mainly because of the increased density of population and industry in high hazard areas Although the prediction of earthquakes is not practicable yet the present technology allows a prompt identification of the onset of any dangerous seismic event before it hits an urban area Hence early warning and rapid disaster information systems are becoming important means for strengthening the resilience of our society against the negative consequences of extreme seismic events Earthquake early warning can provide an alert within a few tens of seconds in advance This small lead time may be used to minimize property damage and loss of lives in metropolitan areas and to aid emergency response The book provides information on the major EEW systems in operation and on the state of the art of the different blocks forming an EW system the rapid detection and estimation of the earthquake s focal parameters the signal transmission the engineering interface and the information reliability false alarm problem Early Warning and Conflict Prevention Klaas Van Walraven, 1998-09-24 Background Sketch Howard Adelman A Contingency-Based View of Chief Executive Officers' Early Warning Behaviour Andreas Kirschkamp, 2008-01-23 Andreas Kirschkamp empirically analyses the early warning behavior of Chief Executive Officers in German medium sized companies First he presents the design variables of early warning then the influencing contingency variables On the basis of the scholarly research on psychological and contingency theory the author deduces hypotheses and tests them Introduction to the engineering and construction contract Bronwyn Mitchell, Barry Trebes, 2005 NEC Managing Reality is a series of manuals written by NEC experts well versed in using the NEC at the coalface New Development of Underground Energy Storage Using Mine Space Jinyang Fan, Junbao Wang, Yancheng Zhang, Alexandre Chemenda, 2022-09-30 Enabling People-Centered Risk Communication for Geohazards Alessandro Amato, Sally H. Potter, Anna Scolobig, Eric M. Thompson, 2024-07-18 In the field of natural hazards communicating science with the public and stakeholders involves entering the challenging and complex world of hazard and risk communication the ultimate purpose of which is to reduce the impact of impending hazards on people at risk According to the Sendai Framework 2015 2030 it is important to strengthen the utilization of media including social media traditional media big data and mobile phone networks to support national measures for successful disaster risk communication Sometimes risk communication has collateral and unexpected side effects that may lead to the adoption of inadequate behaviors In some instances this can even result in legal actions being taken against scientists and or emergency managers The role of the media should be to facilitate the accurate communication of hazard and risk information but such communication is often hampered by the fact that journalists have different agendas and priorities than scientists risk communicators and emergency managers This does not always support people in their decision making Accurate communication of hazard and risk is especially important when decisions have to be made within contexts where uncertainty is very high This is often the case with geohazards such as earthquakes tsunamis volcanic eruptions and landslides

Facing Global Environmental Change Hans Günter Brauch,Navnita Chadha Behera,Patricia Kameri-Mbote,John Grin,Úrsula Oswald Spring,Béchir Chourou,Czeslaw Mesjasz,Heinz Krummenacher,2009-06-04 The year 2007 could perhaps accurately be described as the year when climate change finally received the attention that this challenge deserves globally Much of the information and knowledge that was created in this field during the year was the result of the findings of the Fourth sessment Report AR4 of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC which were disseminated on a large scale and reported extensively by the media This was the result not only of a heightened interest on the part of the public on various aspects of climate change but also because the IPCC itself proactively attempted to spread the findings of its AR4 to the public at large The interest generated on the scientific realities of climate change was further enhanced by the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the IPCC and former Vice President of the US Al Gore By taking this decision in favour of a leader who has done a great deal to create awareness on c mate change and a body that assesses all scientific aspects of climate change and disseminates the result of its findings the Norwegian Nobel Committee has clearly drawn the link between climate change and peace in the world
