Financial Algorithms and Accountability Joseph Trek, 2026-02-26 In an era where algorithms decide who gets a mortgage and how markets move the intersection of finance and artificial intelligence is the most critical frontier in the global economy Algorithms and Accountability tackles the urgent question of how we ensure these powerful digital tools remain fair safe and transparent Whether you are a banking professional a fintech developer or a consumer concerned about digital bias this book provides an essential roadmap for navigating the high stakes world of automated money You will go beyond the headlines to uncover the actual machinery behind modern banking Discover how fairness is mathematically tested in credit scoring how privacy laws constrain the data appetite of machine learning and why even the smartest models can hallucinate or discriminate From the control rooms where governance frameworks are built to the front lines of fraud detection this guide reveals exactly how institutions are striving to keep humans in the loop of algorithmic decision making Written with the accessible storytelling flair of The Everyman's Finance Series this book strips away complex jargon to deliver practical actionable insights It favors relatable analogies over dense equations making sophisticated concepts like model risk management and generative AI ethics understandable for everyone This is your definitive guide to understanding the invisible code that controls the world's wealth Overinvested Nina Bandelj, 2026-01-20 What happens when children become investment projects and child rearing becomes exhausting labor? Parents are exhausted. When did raising children become such all-consuming, never-ending, incredibly expensive and emotionally absorbing effort? In this eye-opening book, Nina Bandelj explains how we got to this point, how we turned children into financial and emotional investments and child rearing into laborious work. At the turn of the twentieth century, children went from being economically useful, often working to support families, to being seen by their parents as vulnerable and emotionally priceless. In the new millennium, however, parents have become overinvested in the emotional economy of parenting. Analyzing in-depth interviews with parents, national financial datasets, and decades of child-rearing books, Bandelj reveals how parents today spend, save, and even go into debt for the sake of children. They take on parenting as the hardest but most important job and commit their entire selves to being a good parent. The economization and emotionalization of society work together to drive parental overinvestment, offering a dizzying array of products and platforms to turn children into human capital, from financial instruments to extracurricular programs to therapeutic parenting advice. And yet, Bandelj warns, the privatization of child rearing and devotion of parents' monies, emotions, and souls ultimately hurt the well-being of children, parents, and society. Overinvested offers a compelling argument that we should reimagine children and what it means to raise them. Journal of the Senate of the United States of America, United States, Congress, Senate, Viral Debt, Jodi Gardner, Mia Gray, Frederick F. Wherry, 2026-04-03 Challenging how social scientists, policymakers, legal scholars, and the public examine household debts and wellbeing, Viral Debt traces how debt moves within and across households to communities and institutions with devastating effects. Debt is not merely a contractual condition; it is also an inherently unequal relationship between creditor and debtor that can exploit pre-existing vulnerabilities while creating new ones. With a roster of leading social science and socio-legal scholars, this book shows how debt, like a contagion, works systematically across economic and social structures and geographies, demonstrating the ways in which policy has exacerbated the problem of debt through policy choices. This volume offers urgent answers by drawing on quantitative data about household indebtedness, credit and debt policies, and local court actions, together with qualitative research. Moody's Public Utility News Reports, 1990-08 Includes weekly cumulative indexes. The Mining Journal, Railway and Commercial Gazette, 1892. Salesology, 1924. Standard & Poor's Stock Reports, 2011-03. Best's Insurance Reports, 1981. Enhancing Veterinary Access Through One Health and Interprofessional Collaborations, Michael J. Blackwell, Greg Wolfus, Andrea Peda, Jennifer Weisent, Azalia Boyd, Bethanie Poe, Ron Orchard, T. Fisher, 2026-03-31 Due to the remarkable success of the Research Topic Access to Veterinary Care and the rapidly evolving subject area, we are pleased to launch Volume II for this topic. Access to veterinary care is a critical field of research that addresses the barriers preventing pets from receiving necessary medical attention The 2018 Access to Veterinary Care Coalition study highlighted the profound impact that limited access to veterinary services has on both pets and their human families particularly those facing financial hardships As pets are increasingly considered family members the inability to provide them with adequate care can lead to significant emotional and mental stress for their owners Recent studies have shown that financial constraints are a major barrier especially for families dependent on public assistance Despite ongoing efforts there remains a need for sustainable evidence based solutions to improve access to veterinary care particularly through interprofessional collaborations and One Health strategies that address the holistic well being of both pets and their families This research topic aims to explore and evaluate various approaches to reducing barriers to veterinary care The primary objectives include identifying effective strategies validating service delivery models and understanding the broader impacts of limited access to veterinary services Specific questions to be addressed include What are the most effective evidence based practices for improving access to veterinary care How can One Health collaborations enhance service delivery What roles do veterinary and social work education play in mitigating these barriers By answering these questions the research aims to contribute to the development of more inclusive and sustainable veterinary care systems To gather further insights into the complexities of access to veterinary care we welcome articles addressing but not limited to the following themes The Human Animal Bond Validation of veterinary service delivery models including payment options Companion animal welfare public health and society One Health collaborations as a paradigm to improve access to veterinary care including veterinary social work Validation of spectrum of care incremental veterinary care protocols and guidelines as effective patient management strategies The roles of veterinary and social work education in improving access to veterinary care Cultural competence diversity equity and inclusion in veterinary medicine and animal welfare Programs that mitigate barriers to veterinary care in urban suburban small town and rural communities Use of technology in improving access to veterinary care e g virtual healthcare telehealth The impacts that lack of access to veterinary care have on the well being of veterinary care teams
