

The background of the book cover is a dense, light-colored pattern of archaic Chinese characters, likely seal script, arranged in vertical columns. The characters are somewhat faded and serve as a decorative backdrop for the title text.

Early Archaic Chinese William Arthur Charles Harvey Dobson, 1959

Late Archaic Chinese W.A.C.H.

Dobson, 1959-12-15 In this book Professor Dobson has laid the foundations for a systematic and scientific study of the grammar of Classical Chinese He has devised a system set up according to the canons of modern linguistic science a system which is at once intrinsic to the language itself one that makes possible a proper accounting for all of the data and does so with economy and one which produces solutions which are reproduceable and predictable This volume deals in detail with Late Archaic Chinese the language of the classical texts of Mencius Micius Chung Tzu and Tso chuan A total accounting is provided for all forms and particles occurring at this period A feature of the description is that the analytical categories set up are based on levels and types of distribution that is to say that word and unitary classes are characterized by environmental rather than by intrinsic features Thus the classes and categories recognized are directly observable in the material In a language in which accident plays no part but in which grammatical values are environmentally imposed such a system enables observation of a precise and predictable kind Late Archaic Chinese has now for the first time been scientifically comprehensively and precisely described This book contains in addition to a grammatical description of Late Archaic Chinese passages from Late Archaic authors produced in Chinese characters and romanized script with a complete grammatical analysis and translation and a lexicon of grammatical particles in Late Archaic Chinese This book will take its place among the standard sinological reference works but it will also be of interest to linguists for the contribution it makes to theoretical linguistics Chinese characters used in printing the book were loaned by the Harvard Yenching Institute

Harvard University Papers in Chinese Linguistics and Epigraphy Fagao Zhou, 1986 Late Han Chinese: A Study of the Archaic-Han Shift W. A. C. H. Dobson, 1964-12 This book continues and carries a stage further Professor Dobson's pioneering researches into the nature and development of Classical Chinese He has here compared a Late Archaic text with a paraphrase of that text written in Late Han Chinese Chinese Annals in the Western Observatory Edward

Shaughnessy, 2019-11-18 Since the beginning of the twentieth century hundreds of thousands of documents of all sorts have been unearthed in China opening whole new fields of study and transforming our modern understanding of ancient China While these discoveries have necessarily taken place in China Western scholars have also contributed to the study of these documents throughout this entire period This book provides a comprehensive survey of the contributions of these Western scholars to the field of Chinese paleography and especially to study of oracle bone inscriptions bronze and stone inscriptions and manuscripts written on bamboo and silk Each of these topics is provided with a comprehensive narrative history of studies by Western scholars as well as an exhaustive bibliography and biographies of important scholars in the field It is also supplied with a list of Chinese translations of these studies as well as a complete index of authors and their works Whether

Tense, Aspect and Action Carl Bache, Hans Basbøll, Carl-Erik Lindberg, 2011-12-01 Research on language universals and research on linguistic typology are not antagonistic but rather complementary approaches to the same fundamental problem the relationship between the amazing diversity of languages and the profound unity of language Only if the true extent of typological divergence is recognized can universal laws be formulated In recent years it has become more and more evident that a broad range of languages of radically different types must be carefully analyzed before general theories are possible Typological comparison of this kind is now at the centre of linguistic research The series empirical approaches to language typology presents a platform for contributions of all kinds to this rapidly developing field The distinctive feature of the series is its markedly empirical orientation All conclusions to be reached are the result of a deepened study of empirical data General problems are focused on from the perspective of individual languages language families language groups or language samples Special emphasis is given to the analysis of phenomena from little known languages which shed new light on long standing problems in general linguistics The series is open to contributions from different theoretical persuasions It thus reflects the methodological pluralism that characterizes the present situation Care is taken that all volumes be accessible to every linguist and moreover to every reader specializing in some domain related to human language A deeper understanding of human language in general based on a detailed analysis of typological diversity among individual languages is fundamental for many sciences not only for linguists Therefore this series has proven to be indispensable in every research library be it public or private which has a specialization in language and the language sciences To discuss your book idea or submit a proposal please contact Birgit Sievert

The Sinitic Languages Mieczysław Jerzy K nstler, 2019-02-04 The Sinitic Languages is the quintessence of Mieczysław Jerzy K nstler's thirty years of research into the Chinese languages Originally published in Polish in 2000 as J zyki chi skie this work collected K nstler's various lectures on the fascinating world of this branch of the Sino-Tibetan language family It marked the apogee of linguistic research of Chinese languages in Poland

With a keen intuitive understanding of the workings of these languages K nstler introduces his readership to the historical development of spoken Sinitic languages Besides analyzing the various stages of Standard Chinese he also makes a convincing case for classifying Cantonese Pekinese Nankinese Minnanese Wu and other so called dialects as distinct languages K nstler s work offers an insightful and detailed overview about synchronic and diachronic research on the major language groups of Chinese a fast growing academic field until today The present English version was begun by K nstler himself before his untimely demise in 2007 However it is not merely a translation of the Polish work but a revised edition that introduces a shift in Sinological linguistics from a genetic to an areal description of Modern Chinese languages A joint effort of the Polish linguist Alfred Franciszek Majewicz and the Sinologists Ewa Zajdler and Maria Kurpaska helped to bring the original manuscript to its completion Thus The Sinitic Languages is now finally accessible for a larger readership Both amateurs and experts interested in this topic are invited to follow K nstler on his intellectual journey into Sinological linguistics K nstler intentionally excluded Chinese characters from his work because he viewed the Sinitic languages primarily as spoken languages In order to provide readers with the opportunity to compare spoken and written language the editors added an index with glossary to the English version
