Romanticism Gendered Andrea Fischerová, 2008 This study focuses on the six writing men who have been throughout decades regarded as the alpha and omega of British Romanticism: Byron, Coleridge, Keats, Scott, Shelley, and Wordsworth. It sees these men as a representative cohort of their time and examines their letters as results of a reading process. Although letters are usually seen as additional sources of reference in literary studies, in this book they are treated as the dominant information material. Correspondence enables to reconsider British Romanticism on the basis of the epistolary communication of the first half of the nineteenth century. The target information from the letters are references to women writers and to their writings. A detailed analysis of the correspondence manages to answer the question whether male Romantics regarded writing women as provoking from time to time as Duncan Wu assumes and whether the gender identity of the woman author influenced the way male readers read her literary works. The examination of the correspondence thus takes a gendered perspective on British Romanticism. This approach to the target research data discloses a long list of almost 120 names of women writers from different periods and of different literary genres. Whereas the male readers in question have acquired a well-established stable long-term position within literary history, the women were often marginalized even forgotten. The study presents plentiful examples proving the discrepancies between what the twenty-first century reader regards as the core of women's Romantic literary tradition and what the Romantic reader did. The following women writers are discussed in the study in detail: Susannah Centlivre, Anne Finch, Lady Winchelsea, Ann Radcliffe, Mary Robinson, Felicia Hemans, Mary Shelley, Joanna Baillie, Maria Edgeworth, Maria Jane Jewsbury, Catherine Grace Godwin, and Emmeline Fisher.

Antigone's Daughters? Hilary Owen, Cláudia Pazos Alonso, 2011-02-24 Antigone's Daughters provides the first detailed discussion in English of six well-known Portuguese women writers working across a wide range of genres: Florbela Espanca (1894-1930), Irene Lisboa (1892-1958), Agustina Bessa-Luís (1923), Natália Correia (1923-93), Hélia Correia (1949), and Lídia Jorge (1946). Together they cover the span of the 20th century and afford historical insights into the complex gender politics of achieving institutional acceptance and validation in the Portuguese national canon at different points in the 20th century. Although a patrilineal evolutionary model visibly structures national literary history in Portugal, to the present day women writers and critics have not generally sought to replace this with a matrilinear feminist counter-history. The unifying metaphor that the authors adopt here for the purpose of discussing Portuguese women's ambivalent response to female genealogy is the classical figure of Antigone, who paradoxically sacrifices her own genealogical continuity in the name of defending family and kinship while resisting the patriarchal pragmatics of state building Should women writers faced with the absence of a female tradition posit a woman centred place outside the jurisdiction of male genealogy however strategically essentialist that place may be or should they primarily eschew fixed sexual identity to act as unnameable saboteurs undoing the law of patriarchal tradition from within

Romantic Medievalism E. Fay,2001-12-17 Nineteenth century medievalism is usually associated with Scott s world of Ivanhoe but Romantic Medievalism argues that Scott s is a conservative use of the past and that radical poets such as the young Coleridge Keats and Shelley used the medieval to critique and change rather than validate the present These poets identified with the troubadour of courtly love a disempowered figure often politically at odds with the establishment figure of the knight

Romanticism, Maternity, and the Body Politic Julie Kipp,2003-08-14 In Romanticism Maternity and the Body Politic Julie Kipp examines Romantic writers treatments of motherhood and maternal bodies in the context of the legal medical educational and socioeconomic debates about motherhood so popular during the period She argues that these discussions turned the physical processes associated with mothering into matters of national importance The privately shared space signified by the womb or the maternal breast were made public by the widespread interest in the workings of the maternal body These private spaces evidenced for writers of the period the radical exposure of mother and child to one another for good or ill Kipp s primary concern is to underline the ways that writers used representations of mother child bonds as ways of naturalizing endorsing and critiquing Enlightenment constructions of interpersonal and intercultural relations This fascinating literary and cultural study will appeal to all scholars of Romanticism
