Ancient Worlds Modern Reflections:

Ancient Worlds, Modern Reflections Geoffrey Ernest Richard Lloyd, 2006 Publisher description Geoffrey Lloyd engages in a wide ranging exploration of what we can learn from the study of ancient civilizations that is relevant to fundamental problems both intellectual and moral that we still face today These include in philosophy of science the question of the incommensurability of paradigms the debate between realism and relativism or constructivism and between correspondence and coherence conceptions of truth How far is it possible to arrive at an understanding of alien systems of belief Is it possible to talk meaningfully of science and of its various constituent disciplines astronomy geography anatomy and so on in the ancient world Are logic and its laws universal Is there one ontology a single world to which all attempts at understanding must be considered to be directed When we encounter apparently very different views of reality how far can that be put down to a difference in conceptions of what needs explaining or of what counts as an explanation or to different preferred modes of reasoning or styles of inquiry Do the notions of truth and belief represent reliable cross cultural universals In another area what can ancient history teach us about today s social and political problems Are the discourses of human nature and of human rights universally applicable What political institutions do we need to help secure equity and justice within nation states and between them Lloyd sets out to answer all these questions and to argue that the study of the science and culture of ancient Greece and China provided a precious resource in order to advance a wealth of modern debates
