And Sin No More:

And Sin No More Marian J. Morton, 1993 In this compelling study Marian Morton traces the development of public and private health care policies for single mothers and identifies the ways in which attitudes about religion race and cultural definitions of womanhood affected their treatment Focusing on the history of the public hospital and four private maternity homes in Cleveland Morton considers the care of unwed mothers in the context of developing American social policy from the mid nineteenth century to today While social policy has taken on a growing responsibility for health care of dependent people the perception of unwed mothers as sinful by the Christian church and undeserving because their situation was brought about by moral failure has differentiated them from other dependent populations Government provides unmarried mothers with the least support and private maternity homes run mostly by churches have remained committed to the nineteenth century notion of spiritual reclamation As Morton shows regardless of the time period women pregnant out of wedlock have been the dependent population most easily disciplined by private agencies and the most resented and politically vulnerable recipients of public assistance This vital work sheds new light on the current controversies over public assistance and legalized abortion and offers a powerful appraisal of the uncertainties and inequities of American social policy as it applies to women who fail to conform to social definitions of womanhood

To Sin No More David Rex Galindo, 2018-02-27 For 300 years Franciscans were at the forefront of the spread of Catholicism in the New World In the late seventeenth century Franciscans developed a far reaching systematic missionary program in Spain and the Americas After founding the first college of propaganda fide in the Mexican city of Quer taro the Franciscan Order established six additional colleges in New Spain ten in South America and twelve in Spain From these colleges Franciscans proselytized Indians in frontier territories as well as Catholics in rural and urban areas in eighteenth century Spain and Spanish America To Sin No More is the first book to study these colleges their missionaries and their multifaceted sweeping missionary programs By focusing on the recruitment of non Catholics to Catholicism as well as the deepening of religious fervor among Catholics David Rex Galindo shows how the Franciscan colleges expanded and shaped popular Catholicism in the eighteenth century Spanish Atlantic world This book explores the motivations driving Franciscan friars their lives inside the colleges their training and their ministry among Catholics an often overlooked duty that paralleled missionary deployments Rex Galindo argues that Franciscan missionaries aimed to reform or reawaken Catholic parishioners just as much as they sought to convert non Christian Indians
