

MUSICAL AUTOBIOGRAPHY- final draft

For my music biography I wouldn't say I have a specific music style neither a specific influence such as a band or singer. I just listen to music that stimulates my brain and touches my heart. Although a lot the music that is most meaningful to me is associated with positive memories, dreams, people, places, etc. I also associate specific songs with darker times in my life. Here there are some personally important songs.

To start with, the song "Forever Young" from the German band Alphaville is particularly special to me because it reminds me of my first semester at UNF. It is not always easy being an international student because you find yourself in a different country, culture, alone and far away from home. However, the first semester was very special because I made a lot of good friends unexpectedly. Because it was our first time in the US, my new friends and I traveled a lot and visited many cities. We watched every sunset at every city listening to this song and then, at the end of the semester we made a final video with all the special moments. Of course, the soundtrack was "Forever Young."

The second song is very inspirational to me, it is "Coastline" from the Australian singer Hollow Coves. When I listen to this song my mind goes to a big and sandy beach surrounded by nature and big waves for surfing. Since I have memory, I have always had a dream I don't understand where it comes from, which is moving to Australia. I worked very hard for pursuing my dream when Covid hit, and I lost the opportunity to go there. Listening to the lyrics of this song gives me hope: "I am leaving home for the coastline" "I am moving far away to a sunny place," "I feel my heart for the first time" "And there's a place that I've dreamed of," etc.

To continue with, I associate Vance Joy's hit "Riptide" with one of my favorite persons, my best friend. I met her playing this indie folk song with the ukulele and will always remind me of her. Whenever she brings her instrument to any trip or friends meeting, we always sing this song first. I guess it is not only me the one who associates Riptide to her, I would say this is her song and the happy beats reflect her joyful character and personality.

Moreover, the most special song to me is "Princesas" from the group Perez2. This song was playing at a party when I met a very important person in my life and since then, we always say it is "our song." We have built most of the memories together with this song playing. So, when I listen to it immediately reminds me of us and all the special things we lived together. Although we are not as close as we were by that time, we always send it to each other anytime we listen to it to demonstrate we still caring and loving each other.

Finally, not all the music that is important to me, I associated it with positive moments. There are songs that remind to difficult times such as How to save a life, by The Fray. This is a hard song because the lyrics talk about a friend that was dealing with depression and all his friends tried to help him but couldn't. So, this song is like a "manual" how to save a life. It is special for me because I went through a similar situation with a person close to me. So anytime this song plays all the memories go on, and the lyrics resonate a significant and hard moment in my life.
