• What is Deceased Partner?

According to the Indian Partnership Act, 1932. Deceased partner is one who has discontinued the partnership due to his death. A contract between the partners of the enterprise is not dissolved by the death of a partner, the estate of a dead partner is not responsible for any act of the enterprise done after his death.

• What Happens When a Partner Dies?

1. In such a situation, the partnership deed after the death of a partner is terminated.
2. Subsequently, the rights of the legal representatives of a deceased partner depend on the provisions of that firm's partnership deed. In most cases, surviving partners decide to continue the venture and may end up purchasing the shares of their deceased partner once his/her due is computed and subsequently treated as a loan.
3. The most common death of partner problems and solutions pertaining to the unpredictability of the incident as to when a partner may succumb to death. Typically, legal representatives would receive the deceased's portion of profits that were accrued between the period when accounts were closed and until the death of the said partner.
4. Now such duration can range anywhere between 1 day and 365 days. Nonetheless, in the absence of an agreement or arbitrary decision, accounts must be prepared as they were on the date while profit and loss were being ascertained.

The accounting treatment in the occurrence of death of a partner is :

- Similar to that, when a partner retires and that in case of deceased partner his belonging is transferred to his legal enforcers and settled in a similar way as that of the partner who retires .
