Landscape Research has been established as an interdisciplinary field dealing with complex environmental processes at multiple spatial and temporal scales. During the course of its history various societal, technological, and philosophical stimuli have shaped Landscape Research. e.g. the declaration of Landscape Ecology in the 1930s and contemporary global technological and societal developments. Modern landscape research presently uses mathematics, statistics, and advanced simulation techniques to combine empirical observations with known theories from ecology, physics, geography, social science, and so on. Knowledge is thus updated and quantified via models that are used for estimation, hypothesis testing, prediction, and assessment of scenarios. Advances in the computational sciences, e.g. fast computers and vast array of software, space science, e.g. remote sensing, and biological sciences, e.g. genetics, as well as new perspectives in the social sciences, play important roles. Research findings are implemented in conservation management, urban planning, and global change mitigation strategies. This book identifies emerging fields and new challenges that are discussed within the framework of the driving forces of Landscape Development. Rather than offering a comprehensive overview of all fields of Landscape Research, the book addresses hot topics, emphasizing major contemporary trends in these fields.

Computer assisted vegetation analysis E. Feoli, L. Orlóci, 2012-12-06

There are many books and computer programs dealing with look ahead rather than pondering the past. This is a book with data analysis. It would be easy to count at least a manual of recent views that evolved in the study of vegetation, yet few of these would show applications in vegetation. This book is intended to emphasize the new vegetation science. Today, in the face of environmental acquisitions which we believe significantly affect the degradation caused by anthropogenic pressures on the future of vegetation analysis, biosphere, there is added urgency to study vegetation.

1. Vegetation is a fuzzy system; it must be treated as processes and dynamics in order to understand their role, such as at the set level where the idea of conceptualized in regulating the water, oxygen, and the carbon cycles in patterns must drive the research design relation to global warming and ozone layer depletion. It

2. Vegetation cannot be seen only in the perspective of a; it is well known that ecology was developed first in vegetation traditional taxonomy based on the species concept. tion studies see Acot 1989, but after an active period, character sets of ecological value must enter into marked by intensive phytoclimatic and synecological consideration, and a hierarchical analysis of patterns studies vegetation science entered in a rather dormant and processes should be the basis of comparisons period. Other ecological disciplines, such as animal population

Fischer,2019-03-13 The ability to manipulate spatial data in different forms and to extract additional meaning from them is at the heart of GIS yet genuine spatial analysis tools are rarely incorporated into commercial software thus seriously limiting their usefulness The future of GIS technology will depend largely on the incorporation of more powerful analytical and modelling functions and there is agreement within the GIS community of the urgent need to address these issues This text attempts this task It presents the latest information on incorporating spatial analysis tools into GIS and includes concepts and applications from both the environmental and socio economic sciences Dissertation Abstracts International ,1993-05
