Dna Protein Interactions And Gene Regulation:

DNA Edward Brad Thompson, John Papaconstantinou, 1987 The Analysis of Regulatory DNA: Current Developments, Knowledge and Applications Uncovering Gene Regulation Kenneth Berendzen, Joachim Kilian, Dierk Wanke, 2013-10-29 A major goal of integrative research is understanding regulatory networks to such an extent as to allow researchers to model developmental and stress responses Regulatory networks of living systems include complex and vast interactions between proteins metabolites RNA various signaling molecules and DNA One aspect of systems biology is understanding the dynamics of protein DNA interactions affecting gene expression that are caused by transcription factors TFs and chromatin remodeling factors This e book provides a resource for summarizing current knowledge eukaryotic transcription and explores cis elements and methods for their analysis prediction and discovery The book also presents an overview of exploring gene regulatory networks chromatin and miRNAs Information about state of the art techniques for the determination of TF cis element interactions in vivo and in silico give cutting edge insights on how genomic scale research is being approached The Analysis of Regulatory DNA provides readers with both the necessary background knowledge and provocative up to date insights aimed at sparking new and vibrant experimental designs for understanding and predicting cis elements in the eukaryotic genome DNA-Protein Interactions A. Travers, 2012-12-06 Our understanding of the mechanisms regulating gene expression which determine the patterns of growth and development in all living organisms ultimately involves the elucidation of the detailed and dynamic interactions of proteins with nucleic acids both DNA and RNA Until recently the commonly presented view of the DNA double helix as visualized on the covers of many textbooks and journals was as a monotonous static straight rod incapable in its own right of directing the processes necessary for the conservation and selective reading of genetic information This view although perhaps extreme was reinforced by the necessary linearity of genetic maps The reality is that the biological functions of both DNA and RNA are dependent on complex and sometimes transient three dimensional nucleoprotein structures in which genetically distant elements are brought into close spatial proximity It is in such structures that the enzymatic manipulation of DNA in the essential biological processes as DNA replication transcription and recombination are effected the complexes are the mediators of the DNA transactions of Hatch Echols DNA-protein Interactions in Transcription Jay D. molecular biology DNA binding proteins are at the very heart of the regulation and control of gene expression replication and recombination Enzymes that recognize and either modify or cleave specific DNA sequences are equally important to the cell Some of the techniques reported in this volume can be used to identify previously unknown DNA binding proteins from crude cell extracts Virtually all are capable of giving direct information on the molecular basis of the interaction the location of the DNA binding site the strength and specificity of binding the identities of individual groups on specific bases involved in binding the specific amino acid residues of the protein that interact with the DNA or the effects of protein binding on gross conformation and local structure of DNA The recognition of DNA sequences by proteins is a complex phenomenon involving specific hydrogen bonding contacts to the DNA bases direct readout and or interactions with the sugar phosphate backbone indirect readout The latter interactions can also be highly specific because of sequence dependent conformational changes in the DNA In addition intercalation of planar aromatic amino acid side chains between the DNA bases can occur most notably with single stranded DNA binding proteins Furthermore when bound many DNA binding proteins induce drastic structural changes in the DNA as an integral part of their function Cambridge Scientific Biochemistry Abstracts ,1992-10
