Michigan Law Review ,2019 The Wall Street Journal ,2006 Building Broadband Yongsoo Kim,Tim John Charles Kelly,Siddhartha Raja,2010 Access to broadband connectivity is a country's passport to the global information society and knowledge economy the future However the adoption and use of broadband technology today remains extremely uneven and threatens to create a new digital divide At the end of 2009 countries in North America and the European Union accounted for more than 50 percent of the world's 1 billion fixed and mobile broadband subscriptions but South Asia and Sub Saharan Africa together accounted for less than 3 percent The experience with mobile telephony though shows the potential for growth in the information and communication technology sector in developing countries Almost 75 percent of the world's mobile telephone subscriptions are in low and middle income countries which have also promoted exciting innovations and realized significant economic development benefits In fact a growing number of countries are seeking to spur broadband development To aid governments as they design their own programs this volume offers examples and ideas from some of the most successful broadband markets particularly the Republic of Korea but also Finland France Japan Sweden the United Kingdom and the United States Building Broadband does not suggest a universal solution but rather provides a long list of policies and programs organized within a strategic framework that allows solutions tailored to country circumstances The essential building blocks identified are useful everywhere because they focus on improving incentives and the climate for private investment This is a policy that even countries with very limited resources will be able to exploit
