

Animal Tissues

Tissues are the groups of cells having a common origin and performing similar functions. Animal tissues are classified into four groups - Epithelial, Connective, Muscular and Nervous tissues.

Epithelial Tissues

Epithelial tissue is the covering tissue. It is made up of cells closely packed and arranged in one or more layers. It is separated from the underlying tissue by a thin sheet of connective tissue.

Squamous Epithelium

Ciliated Epithelium

Stratified Epithelium

Cuboidal Epithelium

Pseudostratified Epithelium

Glandular Epithelium

Connective Tissues

Connective tissues join different organs of the body. They connect different tissues and other structures of the body. They are helpful in repairing damaged tissues and storing fat.

Nervous Tissue

Nervous tissues are the basic constituents of brain, spinal cord and nerves. They react to stimuli and conduct impulses to the various organs in the body. The impulses travel from one neuron to the next neuron for receiving and transmission of stimuli.

Animal Tissue Techniques:

Humason's Animal Tissue Techniques Janice K. Presnell, Martin P. Schreibman, 1997 Gretchen L. Humason began her study of zoology and histological procedures in the 1920s. Passing away in 1991, Humason left behind over half a century of research, study, and instruction. Now true to the traditions of Humason and based on her philosophies, expertise, and recommendations, Janice K. Presnell and Martin Schreibman bring us the newly revised 5th edition of Humason's literary contributions to the theory and operation of histotechnology. Drawing on her life's work, Humason's Animal Tissue Techniques presents basic and standard tissue study procedures as well as specialized histological techniques. Designed as a guide to the principles and methods involved in histotechnology, the text begins with an overview of the history of microtechnology and laboratory safety. It then proceeds to review basic procedures such as fixation, dehydration, and staining methods for specific tissue elements. Also discussed are special procedures and considerations in histochemistry, immunohistochemical methods, microwave histology, sex chromatin, and chromosome preparation of invertebrate whole mounts and sections, and much more. This plus a section on solution preparation and general laboratory aids ensure this book will meet the diverse needs of premedical and zoology students, medical technicians, and research assistants.
