Animals Like Us Mark Rowlands,2002 Foot and mouth and mad cow disease are but two of the results of treating animals as commodities subject only to commercial constraints and ignoring all natural and moral considerations Chickens hanging by their necks on conveyor belts caged pigs with sores bloated dead sheep with their legs in the air mutilated dogs waiting to die after undergoing horrendous experiments in the name of science or just product testing these are some of the images that illustrate the indifference of a consumerist society to the suffering of animals Few are willing to recognize that the packaged sanitized supermarket meat that materializes on their dinner tables every day is the result of an industrial process involving unimaginable pain and suffering We would be horrified if our pets were harmed yet every day we eat animals that have been tortured and executed Mark Rowlands claims that it is simply unjust to harm animals As conscious sentient beings biologically continuous with humans they have interests that cannot simply be disregarded Using simple principles of justice he argues that animals have moral rights and examines the consequences of this claim in the contexts of vegetarianism animal experimentation zoos and hunting and animal rights activism The Relation of the Body Temperature of Certain Cold-blooded Animals to that of Their Environment Charles Gardner Rogers,Elsie May Lewis,1916

Tavolga,2012-12-06 This volume constitutes a series of invited chapters based on presentations given at an International Conference on the Sensory Biology of Aquatic Animals held June 24 28 1985 at the Mote Marine Laboratory in

Sarasota Florida The immediate purpose of the conference was to spark an exchange of ideas concepts and techniques among investigators concerned with the different sensory modalities employed by a wide variety of animal species in extracting information from the aquatic environment By necessity most investigators of sensory biology are specialists in one sensory system different stimulus modalities require different methods of stimulus control and generally different animal models Yet it is clear that all sensory systems have principles in common such as stimulus filtering by peripheral structures tuning of receptor cells signal to noise ratios adaption and disadaptation and effective dynamic range Other features such as hormonal and efferent neural control circadian reorganization and receptor recycling are known in some and not in other senses The conference afforded an increased awareness of new discoveries in other sensory systems that has effectively inspired a fresh look by the various participants at their own area of specialization to see whether or not similar principles apply This inspiration was found not only in theoretical issues but equally in techniques and methods of approach The myopia of sensory specialization was broken in one unexpected way by showing limitations of individual sense organs and their integration within each organism For instance studying vision one generally chooses a visual animal as a model Lives of Game Animals: Rodents, etc. 2 pts Ernest Thompson Seton,1928 Invertebrate animals Richard Lydekker,1896 *Public and private life of animals, adapted from the Fr.
