Imagination and the Creative Impulse in the New Literatures in English Maria Teresa Bindella, Geoffrey V. Davis, 1993. Imagination and the Creative Impulse in the New Literatures in English brings together the proceedings of a symposium organised by the editors at the University of Trento in 1990. At a time when the study of the post colonial literatures is gaining more widespread recognition, scholars based mainly at universities in Italy and Germany were invited to address the manner in which writers are giving literary expression to the complexity of contemporary post colonial and multicultural societies and to consider from their differing perspectives on the new literatures central questions of formal experimentation, linguistic innovation, social and political commitment, textual theory and cross culturality. Focusing on such major writers such as Achebe, Soyinka and Walcott as well as on lesser known figures such as Jack Davis, Witi Ihimaera, Rohinton Mistry and Manohar Malgonkar, the contributors take up many themes characteristic of the new literatures: the challenge posed to traditional authority, the expression of national identity, the role of literature in the liberation struggle, modes of literary practice in multicultural societies, the relationship of the new literatures in English to that of the former metropolitan centre and the complex intertextuality characterizing much of the literary production of post colonial societies.

Unnamed Country Dick Harrison, 1977. Americans have an idea of what the Great Plains did to the people who settled there but know little about the analogous process north of the 49th parallel or how it was reflected in fiction. Dick Harrison's Unnamed Country fills this gap. Harrison traces the varying literary responses to the Canadian prairies from the bewilderment of the first English speaking visitors who saw the country in essentially negative terms (no wood, no water) down to the contemporary novelists who are employing sophisticated modern fictional techniques to reinterpret the whole experience from a new perspective. Between these two ends of the literary continuum he finds the early writers of fiction too loaded down with what he calls excess cultural baggage brought from Britain or eastern Canada to see the country as it was; the early twentieth century writers bemused by the myth of the garden who portrayed the prairies subdued and fruitful; the prairie realists of the 1920s and 1930s akin to O. E. Rolvaag in their tragic view; and their contemporaries, the popular novelists who depicted the pioneering process in more affirmative tones.
