Abstract

At the Regional Radio communication Conference of ITU which took place in June 2006 in Geneva, Switzerland, participants unanimously endorsed a motion for broadcast stations to migrate from analogue to digital broadcasting with deadlines of June 17, 2015, and June 17, 2020, for countries using frequency bands such as VHF. In a bid to fully comply before the ITU deadlines, Nigeria had set 3 unsuccessful deadlines for herself. It first of all set June 17, 2012, which it failed to actualize. The date was extended to December 31, 2012, without success, while a further extension to January 1, 2015, could not equally herald the intended success. Sequel to these failures, the critical question that demand urgent response is, what are the specific factors that have continued to hinder Nigeria's transition to digital broadcasting? On this premise, the researchers(using the intensive interview research method as well as a review of relevant empirical studies), aim to critically unveil and explicate the various factors impeding the successful migration from analogue to digital television broadcasting in Nigeria, this is with a cardinal intention of advancing well thought-out recommendations that will ensure successful transition.

The Vanishing Vision James Day, 2023-04-28 This spirited history of public television offers an insider s account of its topsy turvy forty year odyssey James Day a founder of San Francisco s KQED and a past president of New York s WNET provides a vivid and often amusing behind the screens history Day tells how a program producer desperate to locate a family willing to live with television cameras for seven months borrowed a dime and a suggestion from a blind date and telephoned the Louds of Santa Barbara The result was the mesmerizing twelve hour documentary An American Family Day relates how Big Bird and his friends were created to spice up Sesame Street when test runs showed a flagging interest in the program s live action segments And he describes how Frieda Hennock the first woman appointed to the FCC overpowered the resistance of her male colleagues to lay the foundation for public television Day identifies the particular forces that have shaped public television and produced a Byzantine bureaucracy kept on a leash by an untrusting Congress with a fragmented leadership that lacks a clearly defined mission in today's multimedia environment Day calls for a bold rethinking of public television's mission advocating a system that is adequately funded independent of government and capable of countering commercial television's lowest common denominator approach with a full range of substantive programs comedy as well as culture entertainment as well as information This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1995

Radio and Society Matt Mollgaard, 2011-12-14 Radio is the original mass electronic medium and it continues to be critical for audiences wanting news information music and entertainment For over a century enthusiasts scholars practitioners governments businesses and listeners have developed and influenced radio making it a fascinating medium to explore today There is still no mass medium as ubiquitous as radio and the Internet has extended its geographical and temporal reach even further Radio remains a key media form and technology not only surviving the challenges of the screen and digital ages but developing despite and because of them This book is a collection of contemporary research by radio scholars from the United Kingdom Canada Australia and New Zealand It explores different aspects of this both simple and complex medium from early radio histories to the contemporary developments of radio on the Internet Chapters engage with critical debates about the role of government business and communities in how radio is used in our societies Some chapters provide important new insights into making radio and radio as a cultural force Other chapters explore developments in research methodologies that enable deeper insights into contemporary radio and its audiences This book provides a range of platforms for engaging with radio and radio research as a rich vibrant and fruitful way to further our understandings of the media and ultimately ourselves
