Meredith, 2002-08 In 1892 Broome County was described as having a location that renders it impossible for any combination of circumstances to arrest its growth Further it is the best locale for enterprising capitalists and families seeking a safe haven This statement is as true today as when Broome County was established in 1806 With its sweeping hills and the uniting waters of the Susquehanna and Chenango Rivers this county in the southern tier of New York continues to be a valley of opportunity Broome County 1850 1940 is the story of people of diverse heritage who have made this area their home From the earliest days inventors entrepreneurs artists and a strong workforce have found Broome County to be a fertile terrain for achievement Traditions have not been squandered on conformity but rather have been cherished and shared Some well known landmarks appear in this book however the majority of the images are previously unpublished Included are rare interior views of early twentieth century factories and scenes of people at home and on the move all silent witnesses to the good old days Accompanying the photographs are historical narrations abstracted from verbal accounts letters diaries and newspapers memories and legends rich with reality

Broome County., 1895 Bonds of Community Nancy Grey Osterud, 2018-08-06 Women held a central place in long settled rural communities like the Nanticoke Valley in upstate New York during the late nineteenth century Their lives were limited by the bonds of kinship and labor but farm women found strength in these bonds as well Although they lacked control over land and were second class citizens these rural women did not occupy a separate sphere Individually and collectively they responded to inequality by actively enlarging the dimensions of sharing in their relationships with men Nancy Grey Osterud uses a rich store of diaries letters and other first person documents in addition to public and organizational records to reconstruct the everyday lives of ordinary women of the past Exploring large questions within the confines of a single community she analyzes the ways in which notions of gender structured women's interactions with their families and neighbors their place in the farm family economy and their participation in organized community activities Rare turn of the century photographs of the rural landscape formal and informal family portraits and scenes of daily life and labor add a special dimension to Bonds of Community It should find a ready audience among women's historians labor historians rural historians and historians of New York State Bygone Binghamton Jack Edward Shay, 2012-06 Not Applicable A wraparound cover is being provided by the author Endicott-Johnson Ed Aswad, Suzanne M.
