Smith,2012-02-01 Students of Western civilization need more than facts They need to understand the cross cultural global exchanges that shaped Western history to be able to draw connections between the social cultural political economic and intellectual happenings in a given era and to see the West not as a fixed region but a living evolving construct These needs have long been central to The Making of the West The book's chronological narrative emphasizes the wide variety of peoples and cultures that created Western civilization and places them together in a common context enabling students to witness the unfolding of Western history understand change over time and recognize fundamental relationships Carolingian Connections Joanna Story,2003

The Anglo Saxon influence on the Carolingian world has long been recognised by historians of the early medieval period Wilhelm Levison in particular has drawn attention to the importance of the Anglo Saxon contribution to the cultural and ecclesiastical development of Carolingian Francia in the central decades of the eighth century What is much less familiar is the reverse process by which Francia and Carolingian concepts came to influence contemporary Anglo Saxon culture In this book Dr Story offers a major contribution to the subject of medieval cultural exchanges focusing on the degree to which Frankish ideas and concepts were adopted by Anglo Saxon rulers Furthermore by concentrating on the secular context and concepts of secular government as opposed to the more familiar ecclesiastical and missionary focus of Levison's work this book offers a counterweight to the prevailing scholarship providing a much more balanced overview of the subject Through this reassessment based on a close analysis of contemporary manuscripts particularly the Northumbrian sources Dr Story offers a fresh insight into the world of early medieval Europe The Legend of Charlemagne in the Middle Ages Matthew

Texts and Identities in the Early Middle Ages Richard Corradini, 2006 For seven years a collaboration between the Institute for Medieval Studies of the Austrian Academy of Sciences and the Universities of Utrecht Cambridge Leeds and Paris I Sorbonne provided the opportunity for young researchers to discuss and coordinate their work The title of the project and of this volume Texts and identities provides the framework for case studies in different fields of early medieval history They include apparently disparate topics such as historiography and hagiography monastic spaces and memories lay and ecclesiastic legislation as well as liturgy and penance Rather than defining a common field of research the meetings from which these papers have emerged derived their coherence from their common methodological framework This approach combines two elements on the one hand emphasis has been laid on the careful analysis of the transmission of texts and of the manuscript evidence on the other research has focused on the problem of identity or rather of processes of identification including the perception of differences between specific social political and religious communities In the combination of these two approaches the extant texts from the early medieval period are not only seen as mere reflections of ethnic social and cultural identities but also as media that gave meaning to social practices and were often intended to inspire guide change or prevent action directly or indirectly The written texts that have been transmitted to us can be seen as part of a cultural effort to shape the present by means of restructuring the past The often discordant voices of medieval authors allow modern historians to grasp something of the multiplicity of the early medieval world and of the disagreements conflicts idiosyncrasies and individual perceptions among the people who lived in that period Many contributions in this volume propose specific methods for studying changing identities They analyse differences between similar texts over time or specifically changes in texts in the course of their transmission The papers collected in this volume illustrate that texts were integral parts of a world in transformation
