The Christian Science Monitor Index ,2002 City of Nets Otto Friedrich,2014-03-18 With its tough humor profound cynicism and unerring nose for corruption and hypocrisy City of Nets offers a distinctly Brechtian vision of Hollywood The Village Voice In 1939 fifty million Americans went to the movies every week Louis B Mayer was the highest paid man in the country and Hollywood produced 530 feature films a year One decade and five thousand movies later the studios were faltering The 1940s became the decade of Hollywood s decline anticommunist hysteria excommunicated some of its best talent while a 1948 antitrust consent decree ended many of the business practices that had made the studio system so profitable In this masterful work of cultural history the legendary Otto Friedrich tells the story of Hollywood s heyday and decline in a vivid narrative featuring an all star cast of the actors writers musicians composers producers directors racketeers labor leaders journalists and politicians who played major parts in the movie capital during the turbulent decade from World War II to the Korean War Friedrich draws on sources from celebrity biographies to trade union history mingling lively gossip with analysis of Hollywood s seedier business dealings and telling the stories of legendary movies such as
