CARTOONING FOR KIDS 1 is the first in a series of how to draw cartoons books for beginning cartoonists Unlike many how to draw books MIke puts less emphasis on underlying structure and more emphasis on outlines and edges which is the way most kids like to draw Mike Artell has taught hundreds of thousands of kids and adults how to draw cartoons using this outlines and edges approach during his school visits on television and online Mike s goal is to help young cartoonists focus on the Three R s when drawing their cartoons The cartoons should be RECOGNIZABLE In other words the cartoons should look like what you re trying to draw Someone should be able to look at a drawing you ve done and know what it is you ve drawn It could be a dog a whale etc It s not necessary that the cartoon is an accurate drawing of a dog or whale only that the viewer can easily recognize what it is you ve drawn In fact sometimes inaccuracies are really funny The cartoons should be REMARKABLE The finished product should be something that elicits an honest positive reaction from the viewer A typical positive reaction from the viewer might be something like Wow This is really good I didn t know you could draw like this The cartoons should be REPRODUCIBLE If you learn how to draw a particular cartoon once it should be possible to draw a similar cartoon again if you decide to do so in the future It doesn t matter if you draw with a pencil on a sheet a paper a piece of chalk on the sidewalk or an electronic drawing device The first step is to make a mark on a blank surface There aren t many rules for creating cartoons so feel free to stretch your creative muscles and have some fun cartooning drawing art cartoons illustrations graphics doodles
