The background of the lower half of the cover features a stack of shipping containers. The containers are painted red and have the national flags of China and the United States printed on them. Seifrid, 2014-04-09 This study offers a fresh analysis of the place which justification by faith held in Paul's life and thought In distinction from past attempts to define justification in relation to a logical center the investigation proceeds by assessing the relationship between this theme and two significant points in Paul's career his conversion and his letter to Rome The first chapter surveys a number of interpreters of Paul from William Wrede through E P Sanders In an attempt to overcome the deficiencies of earlier proposals the work then explores the soteriology of two early Jewish writings proximate to Paul 1QS and Pss Sol Paul's references to his preconversion life reveal a connection between these forms of Judaism and that which Paul knew making it likely that within a short time after his conversion Paul's soteriology underwent a radical change involving his adoption of ideas inherent to his later arguments on justification by faith Paul's aim in writing to Rome discloses that he came to regard justification as indispensable to his Gospel and relevant to issues beyond Jew Gentile relations This research challenges the new perspective on Paul Dunn while providing a historical and theological description of Paul's understanding of justification by faith Chambers's Etymological Dictionary of the English Language Robert Chambers, 1867 *Chambers's etymological dictionary of the English language, ed. by J.
