Almeder,2001-04-20 Western societies generally recognize both a legal and a moral right to privacy However at the present time there is no settled opinion in the United States regarding how these rights should relate to medical information On the one hand virtually everyone agrees that one's medical records should not be open to just any interested person's inspection On the other hand most also agree that some sacrifices in medical privacy are necessary for scientific advancement public health protection and other social goals However what limits should be set upon those sacrifices and how those limits should be determined have long been issues of debate In recent years this debate has intensified There are a variety of reasons for this to mention only three 1 Over the years the US health care delivery system has become increasingly complex and with this complexity there has come a need for more and more people to have access to patients medical records With each transference of information breaches in confidentiality become more likely 2 Medical costs have risen at an alarming rate This makes health insurance a virtual necessity for adequate medical care and people worry that they will be denied employment and or medical coverage if certain sorts of medical information are not kept strictly confidential 3 Finally many medical records are now kept in computer files and the impossibility of guaranteeing confidentiality for files of this sort is a constant worry Medical Records Confidentiality in a Changing Health Care Environment United States.
