Conflict Resolution United States. Congress. House. Committee on International Relations. Subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere,1998 Violent Environments Nancy Lee Peluso,Michael Watts,2001 Do environmental problems and processes produce violence Current U S policy about environmental conflict and scholarly work on environmental security assume direct causal links between population growth resource scarcity and violence This belief a staple of governmental decision making during both Clinton administrations and widely held in the environmental security field depends on particular assumptions about the nature of the state the role of population growth and the causes of environmental degradation The conventional understanding of environmental security and its assumptions about the relation between violence and the environment are challenged and refuted in Violent Environments Chapters by geographers historians anthropologists and sociologists include accounts of ethnic war in Indonesia petro violence in Nigeria and Ecuador wildlife conservation in Tanzania and friendly fire at Russia s nuclear weapons sites Violent Environments portrays violence as a site specific phenomenon rooted in local histories and societies yet connected to larger processes of material transformation and power relations The authors argue that specific resource environments including tropical forests and oil reserves and environmental processes such as deforestation conservation or resource abundance are constituted by and in part constitute the political economy of access to and control over resources Violent Environments demands new approaches to an international set of complex problems powerfully arguing for deeper more ethnographically informed analyses of the circumstances and processes that cause violence Natural Resource Conflicts M. Game of Mirrors: Centre-Periphery National Conflicts Francisco Letamendia, 2019-07-30 This title was first published in 2000 Nationalism and the national question have represented a problem since the early years of the 19th century Understanding these phenomena represents a challenge for political science because the nation is not a natural phenomenon rather it is the consequence of nationalism Attempts to reduce nationalism to one or several factors have been unsuccessful it has multiple factors that are variable in space and time Nationalism is a problem of beliefs and conscience linked to the historical action of nationalist groups A second difficulty derives from the distinction between nationalism of the dominant and nationalism of the oppressed The majority of political theorists now believe that these centre and periphery nationalisms are different and therefore adversaries Using first hand experience of Basque separatism as a starting point the author adds to it with the main manifestations of this phenomenon around the world 105-2 Hearing: Conflict Resolution: Chiapas, Mexico and the Search for Peace, 1998
