dynamics in target societies At a time when American foreign policy seeks to redefine its objectives and its methods of intervention the monolithic ideological assumptions of the state as the panacea to all social ailments both as a format and a vehicle of norm delivery seemingly dooms American foreign policy and European allies to the repetition of old mistakes In environments where interests and priorities are shaped on a highly localised basis interventionist agendas often lack relevant meaning The book focuses in particular on the contrast between the assumptions inherent in Western interventionist strategies and social interest formation in Afghanistan Somaliland and Somalia Based on extensive fieldwork the book draws on available literature and on interviews with local population or international aid and development workers The conclusion is that in the cases examined the agency of local interest groups largely controls the outcome of external strategies This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of US Foreign Policy International Relations and Security Studies
