Department of Political and Social Sciences, 2007 Which Policy for Europe? Miriam Hartlapp, Julia Metz, Christian Rauh, 2014 An unprecedented inside view of the European Commission and institution which substantially influences the legislative agenda of the European Union Based on testimonies of 150 insiders the authors show how the institution is significantly influenced by political power struggles that affect the rules that govern Europe The Making of European Security Policy Roberta Haar, Thomas Christiansen, Sabina Lange, Sophie Vanhoonacker, 2021-05-17 This volume addresses how and in what capacity the European Union and its member states are able to respond to fundamental shifts occurring in global politics and remain relevant for the future The changing nature of the international system is subject to considerable contestation among scholars with many claiming that the fundamentals of the post war international system are being rewritten This volume brings together prominent scholars in the field of European security to address a range of pertinent issues related to Europe s role in the context of evolving global challenges The first section focuses on whether the EU is an actor with a strategic nature and the means to act on a global security strategy The second section considers the institutional dynamics and the approaches at the EU s disposal to fulfil its possible intended global roles The third section addresses Europe s most important strategic relationship the partnership it has with the United States This section considers the recalibration of the transatlantic relationship in light of the changing international system and the reorientation of U S foreign policy This book will be of much interest to students of European Union policy European Security policy European Foreign policy and International Relations in general Small States in EU Policy-Making Anna-Lena Högenauer, Matúš Mišík, 2024-04-30 Small States in EU Policy Making analyses how small states try to impact European Union policy making through a range of strategies. With the last rounds of enlargement and Brexit the number and weight of small states in the European Union have steadily increased. At the same time small states face distinct challenges in different institutions which may impact their strategies. Nonetheless the existing literature primarily focuses on the Council of the European Union and the European Council and offers few insights into how small states navigate the other institutions. The contributions to this volume examine how small states can wield influence in different institutions arguing that they do indeed pursue different strategies depending on institutional context. The policy case studies on the EU's foreign and security policies confirm these findings: small states can have influence in EU policy making and can create situations where their needs are met. They are most likely to succeed when they build foreign policy coalitions when they anticipate major economic developments and when they manage to acquire a high level of expertise in a policy area. However the case studies also show that there is a risk of small states becoming policy takers in cases where they cannot provide leadership in terms of ideas and expertise and/or fail to build political weight through coalitions. This book will be of interest to academics and practitioners of European politics and the EU in particular as well as policy makers and practitioners working on small states. Europeanization and Conflict Resolution Bruno Coppieters, 2004. This volume studies the relevance of European integration for conflict settlement and conflict resolution in divided states such as Cyprus or Serbia and Montenegro.

Analyzing the European Union Policy Process Esther Versluis, Mendeltje van Keulen, Paul Stephenson, 2011. The complex patterns of policy making and implementation in the European Union pose particular challenges for policy analysis. This groundbreaking new text equips readers with a thorough understanding of how EU policy is formulated, implemented and evaluated and with the tools and concepts needed to analyze the EU policy process.

The Europeanisation of Conflict Resolutions Boyka Stefanova, 2013-07-19. This book is about the EU's role in conflict resolution and reconciliation in Europe. Ever since it was implemented as a political project of the post World War II reality in Western Europe, European integration has been credited with performing conflict resolution functions. It allegedly transformed the long standing adversarial relationship between France and Germany into a strategic partnership. Conflict in Western Europe became obsolete. The end of the Cold War further reinforced its role as a regional peace project. While these evolutionary dynamics are uncontested, the deeper meaning of the process, its transformative power, is still to be elucidated. How does European integration restore peace when its equilibrium is broken and conflict or the legacies of enmity persist? This book sets out to do exactly that. It explores the peace and conflict resolution role of European integration by testing its somewhat vague, albeit well established macro-political rationale of a peace project in the practical settings of conflicts. The analytical lens of that of Europeanization. The central argument of the book is that the evolution of the policy mix, resources, framing influences and political opportunities through which European integration affects conflicts and processes of conflict resolution demonstrates a historical trend through which the EU has become an indispensable factor of conflict resolution. It begins with the pooling together of policy making at the European level for the management of particular sectors: early integration in the European Coal and Steel Community through the functioning of core EU policies; Northern Ireland to the challenges of enlargement; Cyprus and the European perspective for the Western Balkans; Kosovo. The book will be of value to academics and non expert observers alike with an interest in European integration and peace studies.

British Devolution and European Policy-Making S. Bulmer, M. Burch, C. Carter, P. Hogwood, A. Scott, 2002-11-26. In 1999 the Blair government introduced British devolution as part of a major programme of constitutional reform. This development posed major questions concerning how relations with the European Union would be affected. Previously policymaking in the UK had been centralized on Whitehall and Westminster. However devolution to Scotland and Wales introduced new actors: the Scottish Executive and Parliament and the National Assembly for Wales. This study explores the institutional changes designed to accommodate these devolved authorities whilst maintaining a central role for the UK government.

Conflict Prevention Policy of the European Union Peter Cross, Guenola Rasamoelina, SWP-Conflict Prevention Network, 1999.

Policy-making in the European Union Helen S. Wallace, 1996. This is a fully revised edition of a well established text for students. It offers an invaluable and up to date interpretation of the European policy process. Helen Wallace and William Wallace have assembled a team of internationally renowned authors to present fourteen case studies ranging from analyses of the CAP and environmental policy to the politics of Economic and Monetary Union and the new World Trade Organisation. Helen Wallace also provides in the two opening chapters an introduction and overview of European politics, policy and institutions. In concluding the volume William Wallace reflects on the future for the EU as it faces calls for ever closer political integration.

Policy Making in the European Union provides the student with a timely and provocative insight into European integration in a period of critical change.

EU Foreign Policy and Post-Soviet Conflicts Nicu Popescu, 2010-12-10. The European Union is still emerging as a fully fledged foreign policy actor. The vagaries of this process are clearly visible yet insufficiently explained in the EU policies towards the post Soviet space. EU Foreign Policy and Post Soviet Conflicts examines EU intervention and non intervention in conflict resolution with a specific focus on the EU's role in the post soviet conflicts in the South Caucasus and Moldova, Abkhazia, South Ossetia, Nagorno Karabakh and Transnistria. It explains how EU foreign policy affected these conflicts but more importantly what EU intervention in these conflicts reveal about the EU itself. Based on extensive field research the author argues that the reluctant EU intervention in post Soviet conflicts results from a dichotomous relationship between EU institutions and some EU member states. Popescu argues this demonstrates that EU institutions use policies of stealth intervention where they seek to play a greater role in the post Soviet space but they do so through relatively low profile uncontroversial and depoliticised actions in order to avoid visible Russian opposition. Exploring an array of questions related to the EU as a foreign policy actor this book traces the politics of conflict intervention by EU institutions using original empirical data related to the EU decision making process and will be of interest to students and scholars of European politics conflict resolution foreign policy and Post Soviet politics Are the Council of Ministers and the Commission partners or rivals in European policy-making? Julia Heise,2005-04-02 Essay from the year 2004 in the subject Politics Topic European Union grade 1 5 University of Edinburgh language English abstract The European Union EU is a hybrid and unique body which does not fit with many of our preconceived notions of how politics is organized Cini 2003 a 1 Two aspects contribute to its distinctiveness First the EU has a two level nature it combines supranational with intergovernmental features Supranationalism is defined as the existence of an authority that is higher than that of the nation state and capable of imposing its will upon it Heywood 2000 259 Applied to the EU this definition would only concern the supranational EU institutions But supranationalism also refers to the common interests of the Union as a whole and to most policy areas which are under the authority of the EU The intergovernmental EU level is characterised by the dominance of state sovereignty It relates to some EU policy areas and particularly to the special role of the 25 EU member states which have considerable influence within the Union Both EU levels have been subject to two different EU integration theories Neo functionalism explains the creation and importance of a supranational stage with its core concept of spillover Intergovernmentalism is characterized by its state centrism and focus on sovereignty The second unique aspect of the EU related to the first is the complex EU policy making process Legislation developed by the EU institutions has to be implemented on a national level Particularly the European Commission and the Council of the EU are main actors in policy making In this process the Commission explicitly represents the Union s interests and is thus referred to as supranational The Council shows strong intergovernmental characteristics It acts on behalf of the sovereign EU member states and therefore has considerable influence in policy making EU Accession Dynamics and Conflict Resolution Nathalie Tocci,2004 The prospect of Cyprus EU membership was long hoped to act as a catalyst for a settlement of the island s conflict yet the island remained divided when it joined the EU in 2004 This study analyzes the case of Cyprus and the EU exploring the accession process EU policies towards the conflict and projections for the resolution of the conflict within the EU framework The European Union's Approach to Conflict Resolution Laurence Cooley,2018-10-09 This book investigates and explains the European Union s approach to conflict resolution in three countries of the Western Balkans Bosnia and Herzegovina Macedonia and Kosovo In doing so it critically interrogates claims that the EU acts as an agent of conflict transformation in its engagement with conflict affected states The book argues contrary to the assumptions of much of the existing literature that rather than seeking the transformation of conflicts the EU pursues a more conservative strategy based on the regulation of conflict through the promotion of institutional mechanisms such as consociational power sharing and decentralisation Drawing on discourse analysis of documents speeches and interviews conducted by the author with

European Union officials and policy makers in Brussels and the case study countries the book offers a theoretically grounded methodologically rigorous and empirically detailed analysis of EU policy preferences of the ideas that underpin them and of how those preferences are legitimised This book will be of key interest to scholars students and practitioners interested in ethnic conflict and conflict resolution the politics of the Balkans and the external and foreign policies of the EU EU Foreign Policymaking and the Middle East Conflict Patrick Müller,2012-02-27 This book examines the interplay between the national and the European levels in EU foreign policymaking focusing on the Middle East European engagement in peacemaking in the Middle East dates back to foreign policy cooperation in the early 1970s Following the launch of the peace process in 1991 the EU and its Member States further stepped up their involvement in conflict resolution focusing on one central area of EU engagement the Israeli Palestinian conflict This book covers the period from the beginning of the peace process in 1991 until 2008 and focuses on the actions of the big three Member States Germany France and the UK Using the Europeanization concept as framework of analysis the book examines the problematic dynamics between these Member States national foreign policy models and the construction of a common European conflict resolution policy It also provides interesting new insights into the EU s international role and potential addressing the often neglected question of how Europeanization effects help to mitigate some of the classical limitations of European foreign policymaking The book will be of great interest to students of EU policy Middle Eastern Politics peace and conflict resolution security studies and IR
