Development And Displacement:

Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement Irge Satiroglu, Narae Choi, 2015-04-10 Every year millions of people are displaced from their homes livelihoods and communities due to land based development projects There is no limit to what can be called a development project They can range from small scale infrastructure or mining projects to mega hydropower plants can be public or private well planned or rushed into Knowledge of development induced displacement and resettlement DIDR remains limited even after decades of experience and research Many questions are yet unanswered What is success in resettlement Is development without displacement possible or can resettlement be developmental Is there a global safeguard policy or do we need an international right not to be displaced This book revisits what we think we know about DIDR Starting with case studies that challenge some of the most widespread preconceptions it goes on to discuss the ethical aspects of DIDR The book assesses the current laws policies and rights governing the sector and provides a glimpse of how the displaced people defend themselves in the absence of effective governance and safeguard mechanisms This book is a valuable resource for students and researchers in development studies population and development and migration and development

Development-induced Displacement Chris de Wet, 2005-11-01 Some ten million people worldwide are displaced or resettled every year due to development projects such as the construction of dams irrigation schemes urban development transport conservation or mining projects The results have usually been very negative for most of those people who have to move as well as for other people in the area such as host populations People are often left socially and institutionally disrupted and economically worse off with the environment also suffering as a result of the introduction of infrastructure and increased crowding in the areas to which people had to move The contributors to this volume argue that there is a complexity and a tension inherent in trying to reconcile enforced displacement of people with the subsequent creation of a socio economically viable and sustainable environment Only when these are squarely confronted will it be possible to adequately deal with the problems and to improve resettlement policies

Development-induced Displacement and Resettlement in Bangladesh Mohammad Ameeruz Zaman, Hafiza Khatun, 2017 A very first for Bangladesh this edited book examines the complex issues of development induced displacement and resettlement using case studies with good practice examples from a wide range of ongoing projects The authors who are largely practitioners in the field of resettlement studies are well known in the country and internationally for their expert knowledge The book establishes a baseline for further research on resettlement and development in Bangladesh It is rich in well presented case studies replete with evidence based strategies to help prevent impoverishment amongst those displaced by development projects The chapters in this collection address emerging issues and approaches to resettlement and thus have enriched the literature in an era of rapid economic development and change Thus the book will remain as a valuable resource and reference or teaching aid in academic and development circles In addition to the Foreword by Michael Cernea and the Introduction by the editors the book contains thirteen chapters Chapter One Resettlement in the Jamuna Multipurpose Bridge Project Innovations and Good Practices Mohammad Zaman Chapter Two Beyond Resettlement The SAP II Program in the Bhairab Bridge Project Hafiza Khatun Chapter Three Self Managed Resettlement by Informal Settlers in the Jamuna Meghna River Erosion Mitigation Project Kh Khairul Matin Chapter Four Gender and Resettlement in Bangladesh Bindiya Rawat Chapter Five Income and Livelihood Restoration in the Tongi Bhairab Bazar Double Line Project A M Salah Uddin Chapter Six The Impact of Development on Adibasi People in Bangladesh Hafiza Khatun and Surinder Aggarwal Chapter Seven The Padma Multipurpose Bridge Project The Ten Best Practices in Resettlement Management Mohammad Zaman and Aqueel Khan Chapter Eight Land Acquisition and Resettlement in Urban Transport Project in Dhaka City Experience and Innovations Akhtar Zaman Chapter Nine Resettlement in RCIP Rail Projects A Review of the Planning Experience Saifulla Dostogir and Aktarul Islam Khan Chapter Ten Resettlement Planning and Implementation Making Things Happen Albab Akanda Chapter 11 Training and Capacity Building in Resettlement Management The MLARR Program at BRAC University Ferdous Jahan and Sharif A Wahab Chapter Twelve External Monitoring in CEIP 1 Project Review and Early Experience Jan T Twarowski and Chapter Thirteen Toward a Land Acquisition and Resettlement Law for Bangladesh Issues for Consideration Mohammad Zaman and Hafiza Khatun

Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement Bogumil Terminski,2014-05-01 This book explores the issue of development induced resettlement with a particular emphasis on the humanitarian legal and social aspects of this problem Today so called development induced displacement and resettlement DIDR is one of the dominant causes of internal spatial mobility worldwide Each year over 15 million people are forced to abandon their homes to make space for economic development infrastructure The construction of dams and irrigation projects the expansion of communication networks urbanization and re urbanization the extraction and transportation of mineral resources forced evictions in urban areas and population redistribution schemes count among the many possible causes Terminski aims to present the issue of development caused displacement as a highly diverse global social problem occurring in all regions of the world As a human rights issue it poses a challenge to public international law and to institutions providing humanitarian assistance A significant part of this book is devoted to the current dynamics of development caused resettlement in Europe which has been neglected in the academic literature so far

Ashirbani Dutta,2007 Legal and institutional concerns with reference to India Displacement and Resettlement in India Hari Mathur,2013-07-18 In the past ten years or so displacement by development projects has gone on almost untamed under the globalization pressures to meet the demand for land from local and increasingly foreign investors Focusing on India this book looks at the complex issue of resettling people who are displaced for the sake of development The book discusses how the affected farming communities are fiercely opposing the development projects that often leave them worse off than before and how this conflict is a matter of serious concern for the planners as it could discourage potential capital inflows and put India s growth trajectory into jeopardy It analyses the challenge of protecting the interests of farmers and at the same time ensuring that these issues do not hinder the path of development The book goes on to highlight the emerging approaches to resettlement that promise a more equitable development outcome A timely analysis of displacement and resettlement this book has an appeal beyond South Asian Studies alone It is of interest to policy makers planners administrators and scholars in the field of resettlement and development studies Displacement by Development Peter Penz,Jay Drydyk,Pablo S. Bose,2011-01-20 For decades policy makers in government development banks and foundations NGOs researchers and students have struggled with the problem of how to protect people who are displaced from their homes and livelihoods by development projects This book addresses these concerns and explores how debates often become deadlocked between managerial and movementist perspectives Using development ethics to determine the rights and responsibilities of various stakeholders the authors find that displaced people must be empowered so as to share equitably in benefits rather than being victimized They propose a governance model for development projects that would transform conflict over displacement into a more manageable collective bargaining process and would empower displaced people to achieve equitable results Their book will be valuable for readers in a wide range of fields including ethics development studies politics and international relations as well as policy making project management and community development

Country Frameworks for Development Displacement and Resettlement Susanna Price,Jane Singer,2019-03-28 The problem of escalating population displacement demands global attention and country co ordination This book investigates the particular issue of development induced displacement whereby land is seized or restricted by the state for the purposes of development projects Those displaced by these schemes often risk losses to their homes livelihoods food security and socio cultural support for which they are rarely fully compensated Bringing together 22 specialist researchers and practitioners from across the globe this book provides a much needed independent analysis of country frameworks for development induced displacement spanning Asia Africa Central and South America As global competition for land increases public and private sector lenders are lightening their social safeguards shifting the oversight for protecting the displaced to national law and regulations This raises a central question Do countries have effective ways of addressing the risks and lost opportunities for their people who are displaced While many countries remain impervious to the problem the book also shines a light on the few who are pioneering new legislation and strategies intended to address questions such as should the social costs to those displaced help determine whether a project meets the public interest and merits financing Does the modern state need powers of eminent domain How can country laws systems institutions and negotiations be reformed to protect citizens better against disempowering public and private sector development displacement This book will interest those working on forced and voluntary migration property and expropriation law human rights environmental and social impact assessment internal and refugee displacement from conflicts environment change disasters and development

Development-induced Displacement and Human Rights in Africa Romola Adeola,2020-09-21 Within the context of the 2009 Kampala Convention this book examines how a balance can be struck between the imperative of development projects and the rights of persons likely to be displaced in Africa Following independence many African states embarked on large scale development projects such as dams urban renewal and extraction of natural resources and have had to grapple with how to protect displaced communities while implementing development projects These projects were considered a panacea for Africa s development and the economic interests of the majority were often considered over and above the interests of the minority of people who were displaced by these projects This book examines how a balance can be struck between the imperative of development and the rights of displaced persons within the context of the African Union Convention on the Protection and Assistance of Internally Displaced Persons in Africa the Kampala Convention Romola Adeola analyses the obligations that are placed on African states by the Kampala Convention in the context of development induced displacement This book will be of interest to scholars of human rights law forced migration African Studies and development

The Development Dilemma S. Parasuraman,2016-07-27 The social economic and political contexts in which development projects in India are implemented and consequences to people displaced by such projects are analyzed in this book Development displacement resettlement and rehabilitation processes related to three major reservoir bases irrigation and power projects and three major industrial projects are studied The role of the State international agencies and the private industrial sector in promoting development and managing rehabilitation of the displaced people is assessed and the author proposes a framework for a comprehensive policy on development displacement and rehabilitation

Understanding Impoverishment Chris McDowell,1996 Infrastructure development projects are set to continue into the next century as developing country governments seek to manage population growth urbanization and industrialization The contributions in this volume raise many questions about development and progress in the late twentieth century What is revealed are the enormous problems and disastrous affects which continue to accompany displacement operations in many countries which raise the ever more urgent question of whether the benefits of infrastructure development justify or outweigh the pain of the radical disruption of peoples lives exacerbated by the fact that with some notable exceptions there has been a lack of official recognition on the part of governments and international agencies that development induced displacement is a problem at all This important volume addresses the issues and shows just how serious the situation is Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement in Vietnam Nguyen Quy Nghi, Jane Singer, 2022-09-29 This book explores the complex legal cultural economic and human rights issues associated with development induced displacement and resettlement DIDR in Vietnam As in many parts of the world urban expansion and large scale infrastructure projects in Vietnam often rely on forced land acquisition which can result in the involuntary resettlement of households and entire communities This book examines the adequacy of monetary and in kind compensation and the support that resettles need for successful integration into host communities and for sustainable livelihoods and improved well being It presents new paradigms and practices that place affected households at the centre of project planning and implementation to fully address the needs of the most vulnerable This includes women the elderly and ethnic minority groups Bringing together research evidence practical experience and insights of distinguished researchers this book is the first to systematically examine DIDR in Vietnam a single party state seeking to balance state interests with the demands of investors and civil society for human rights and participation by affected people Combining the latest evidence and research findings on development induced displacement and resettlement in Vietnam with practical experiences in project implementation this book will be a useful guide for researchers across development migration and Southeast Asian Studies as well as practitioners and policy makers Its lessons will also be relevant to other countries facing rapid development

Development-Induced Displacement and Resettlement Bogumil Terminski, 2013

The object of this report is to present development caused displacement and resettlement as a highly diverse global social problem occurring in all regions of the world as a human rights issue and as a source of challenges to public international law and institutions providing humanitarian assistance More in depth analysis has been preceded by an introduction which draws attention to the specific nature of DIDR as one of the categories of internal displacement Equal attention has been devoted to the origins of research into this subject already undertaken during the fifties Initially the field was limited to a small group of applied anthropologists who analyzed the social consequences of construction of dams in Africa The political character of this problem and its large social consequences have in recent years caught the attention of scholars in a growing number of disciplines Another purpose of this report is to analyze the main causes of development induced displacement worldwide In order to maintain the transparent character of the analysis I have distinguished eight main causes of the process These include a construction of dams hydropower plants artificial reservoirs irrigation projects and channels b development of transportation building of roads highways railways airports ports etc c urbanization re urbanization and other transformations of urban space expansion of urban areas demolition of poverty stricken districts such as slums and favelas urban transport underground and water supply projects d mining and transportation of resources especially expansion of open cast mining e deforestation and development of agriculture especially large monoculture plantations such as palm oil plantations on Borneo Island f population redistribution schemes such as the politics of villagization in Ethiopia and Tanzania g conservation of nature the creation of national parks reserves or other biosphere protection units the problem of so called conservation refugees or conservation induced displacement and h other reasons The next task undertaken in this report is the analysis of DIDR specificity in the several regions of the world most acutely affected by this problem I analyze the most spectacular or best known examples of development projects which have led to involuntary resettlement having a negative impact on the living standards of local communities I devote much attention to the methods of humanitarian assistance for DPs and to relations between DIDR and international human rights law and protection Recently adopted documents relating to the protection of displaced people Guiding Principles of Internal Displacement the Great Lakes Pact Convention of Kampala treat this problem in a very selective and limited manner Increased involvement of national and international actors in this issue should be accompanied by adequate action on the part of international humanitarian agencies including the UNHCR In another section of the publication I draw attention to the activities of international institutions on issues of development induced displacement and resettlement The World Bank is currently the only international institution significantly engaging with this issue A substantial part of the report is devoted to analysis of the consequences of development induced displacement and resettlement on the basis of the concept of human security which has evolved since the early nineties The displacement caused by economic development like all other categories of forced migration is related to the significant decrease in the level of human security of people forced to flee their homes The concept of human security can be used to analyze both the individual and community consequences of global social problems The report is supplemented by the author s extensive bibliography over 50 pages long of material related to development induced displacement

Displacement, Development, and Climate Change Nina Hall, 2016-03-22 This book focuses on one critical challenge climate change Climate change is predicted to lead to an increased intensity and frequency of natural disasters An increase in extreme weather events global temperatures and higher sea levels may lead to displacement and migration and will affect many dimensions of the economy and society Although scholars are examining the complexity and fragmentation of the climate change regime they have not examined how our existing international development migration and humanitarian organizations are dealing with climate change Focusing on three institutions the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees the International Organization for Migration and the United Nations Development Programme the book asks how have these inter governmental organizations responded to climate change And are they moving beyond their original mandates given none were established with a mandate for climate change It traces their responses to climate change in their rhetoric policy structure operations and overall mandate change Hall argues that international bureaucrats can play an important role in mandate expansion often deciding whether and how to expand into a new issue area and then lobbying states to endorse this expansion They make changes in rhetoric policy structure and operations on the ground and therefore forge frame and internalize new issue linkages This book helps us to understand how institutions established in the 20th century are adapting to a 21st century world It will be of great interest to scholars and students of International Relations Development Studies Environmental Politics International Organizations and Global Governance as well as international officials

Displaced by Development Lyla Mehta,2009-01-06 This compilation is a rare attempt to apply gender analysis to development induced displacement and resettlement in the Indian context It brings together leading scholar activists researchers and contributors from people s movements to critique and draw attention to the injustices perpetrated during such processes Facing up to the need to focus specifically on how displacement and resettlement affect social groups differently with regard to axes such as gender class caste and tribe the articles show that disenfranchised groups are deemed dispensable and tend to be affected the most and that women and children among them suffer disproportionately Displaced by Development Confronting Marginalisation and Gender Injustice argues that without differentiated analyses and programmes displacement and resettlement will continue to intensify and perpetuate gender and social injustice This work will hold the interest of a wide readership and will be a crucial source of information for those working in the areas of Gender and Social Policy Economics and Development Studies Sociology of Gender Environment and Development Migration Studies Anthropology and South Asian studies It will also interest policy makers in development agencies activists and non governmental organisations concerned with forced displacement and migration issues
