Development And The Environmental Crisis:

Development and the Environmental Crisis Michael Redclift,2010-11-26 First published in 1984 Michael Redclift's book makes the global environmental crisis a central concern of political economy and its structural causes a central concern of environmentalism Michael Redclift argues that a close analysis of the environmental crisis in the South reveals the importance of the share of resources obtained by different social groups The development strategies based on the experiences and interests of Western capitalist countries fail to recognise that environmental degradation in the South is a product of inequalities in both global and local economic relations and cannot be solved simply by applying solutions borrowed from environmentalism in the North The key to understanding the South's environmental problems lies in the recognition that structural processes markets technology state intervention are also a determining influence upon the way natural resources are used Through his review of Europe's Green Movement contemporary breakthroughs in biotechnology and information systems and recent feminist discourse Michael Redclift has enlarged the compass of the environmental debate and produced a book which should serve as a benchmark in future discussions of development and the environment It will be of importance to students in a range of disciplines within development studies geography ecology and the social sciences

The Real Environmental Crisis Jack Hollander,2003-04-02 Drawing a completely new road map toward a sustainable future Jack M Hollander contends that our most critical environmental problem is global poverty His balanced authoritative and lucid book challenges widely held beliefs that economic development and affluence pose a major threat to the world's environment and resources Pointing to the great strides that have been made toward improving and protecting the environment in the affluent democracies Hollander makes the case that the essential prerequisite for sustainability is a global transition from poverty to affluence coupled with a transition to freedom and democracy The Real Environmental Crisis takes a close look at the major environment and resource issues population growth climate change agriculture and food supply our fisheries forests and fossil fuels water and air quality and solar and nuclear power In each case Hollander finds compelling evidence that economic development and technological advances can relieve such problems as food shortages deforestation air pollution and land degradation and provide clean water adequate energy supplies and improved public health The book also tackles issues such as global warming genetically modified foods automobile and transportation technologies and the highly significant Endangered Species Act which Hollander asserts never would have been legislated in a poor country whose citizens struggle just to survive Hollander asks us to look beyond the media's doomsday rhetoric about the state of the environment for much of it is simply not true and to commit much more of our resources where they will do the most good to lifting the world's population out of poverty

China's Environmental Crisis Vaclav Smil, 1993 In 1982 Vaclav Smil turned upside down traditional perceptions of China as a green paradise in The Bad Earth Updating and expanding its basic arguments and perceptions this volume is an inquiry into the fundamental factors needs prospects and limits of modern Chinese society

Environmental Concerns and Sustainable Development Vertika Shukla, Narendra Kumar, 2020 The prevailing global environmental crisis is primarily because of non standardized parameters for environmental regulation Unplanned expansion of economic activities consideration for environmental conservation and several associated problems are emerging due to degradation in quality of ambient environment such as clean air safe drinking water and quality of food particularly in developing nations Due to poor casual execution of EIA protocol newly developing countries are preferred destination for establishing pollution emitting industries which results in degradation and depletion of natural resources Lack of environmental policy intervention is another major attraction for establishing such industries in these nations In order to ensure sustainable development the highest priority issues include the monitoring and eradication of environmental problems which arise due to economic development Initiation of any form of economic development primarily results in loss of forests and thus biodiversity followed by deterioration in quality of air and contamination of natural resources The worst impact of non standardized economic development is the contamination of air water and soil Sustainable development ensures responsible interface with the environment to minimize the depletion or degradation of natural resources and ensure long term environmental quality It involves integrated approaches in understanding the importance of environmental management systems and policy inventions leading to improved environmental performance The present book is proposed to address the environmental concerns associated with economic development and approaches involved to attain sustainable economic development which include monitoring of the quality of air deforestation quality of water resources soil erosion and degradation of the natural environment The Real Environmental Crisis Jack M. Hollander,2003 Drawing a completely new road map toward a sustainable future Jack M Hollander contends that our most critical environmental problem is global poverty His balanced authoritative and lucid book challenges widely held beliefs that economic development and affluence pose a major threat to the world s environment and resources The Globalization of Environmental Crisis Jan Oosthoek,Barry K. Gills,2013-10-31 Previously published as a special issue of Globalizations this collection of essays addresses what is arguably the most pressing and urgent issue of our day the continuing development of global environmental crises and the need for new and urgent responses to them by the world community The contributors include social scientists environmental historians anthropologists and science policy researchers and together they give an overview of the history of the globalization of environmental crisis over the past several decades both in terms of the science of measurement and the types of policy and public responses that have emerged to date The specific issue areas addressed in the book cover a wide range of topics including international environmental governance North South inequalities climate change global warming tropical forests air pollution economic and paradigm shifts sustainability indigenous peoples and eco conservation EU environmental policy the United States and politicized climate science and more The Globalization of Environmental Crisis will be of particular interest to all those concerned with the on going debate over the state of the global environment and what to do about it Asia's Environmental Crisis Michael C.
