The Development of the Mediated Mind Joan M. Lucariello, Judith A. Hudson, Robyn Fivush, Patricia J. Bauer, 2004-07-19 This volume is a festschrift for Katherine Nelson an NYU professor who was a pioneer in infant perception and memory The mediated mind is a term coined by Dr Nelson and it refers to how cognitive development is mediated by the sociocultural context including language and social interaction The impact of Nelson's views on the sociocultural basis of cognition and her functionalist perspective on cognitive development are evident in the collection of chapters in this book The contributors all leaders in the field of cognitive development examine ways in which cognition is embedded in everyday meaningful activities and the role of social context and cultural symbol systems such as language and text influence children's developing concepts and thought The concept of the mediated mind is examined from a variety of perspectives including research in concept development memory development language learning the development of literacy narrative analysis and children's theory of mind The significant contribution of this volume is that it addresses all aspects of the mediated mind Memory both autobiographical and event semantic theory of mind mental representation temporality narrative and metalinguistic awareness comprise the chapter topics The breadth of topics represented is a tribute to the impact Nelson's vision has on many developmental domains The contributors acknowledge and honor her work Her theory and research paved the way for the advances in understanding a mediated mind that are evident and that will continue to shape notions of how the human mind develops and evolves within a social interactive world

The Routledge International Handbook of Early Literacy Education Natalia Kucirkova, Catherine E. Snow, Vibeke Grøver, Catherine McBride, 2017-03-31 The Routledge International Handbook of Early Literacy Education offers a pioneering overview of early literacy provision in different parts of the world and brings together interdisciplinary research evidence on effective literacy teaching to inform current and future practice and policy of early literacy From the problem of identification of literacy difficulties in a particular learning context to supporting the provision of early literacy through digital media the handbook deals with the major concerns and newest areas of interest in literacy research With an international and future vision it provides an accessible guide to the main debates and future trends in the global field of early literacy and informs academics policy makers practitioners educators and students about innovative early literacy research methods and instruction The three sections and 30 ground breaking chapters reflect a conceptual framework of questions asked by scholars and educators interested in looking beyond traditional definitions of literacy Part I provides contemporary insights collected by internationally renowned scholars on what literacy is and what it can offer to young children in the twenty first century Part II is a collection of detailed portraits of 14 countries regions or language communities and focuses on early literacy provision practice and policy from across the world Part III outlines key interventions and research endorsed practices designed to support home school connections and children s reading and writing skills as well as vocabulary phonological awareness and narrative abilities with examples drawn from various home school and community environments All chapters promote discussion critical analysis and questions for reflection and are written in jargon free language in an easy to use themed format This handbook is an indispensable reference guide for practising teachers and student teachers especially those undertaking postgraduate qualifications as well as early literacy researchers policy makers and school based literacy leaders

Language Policies and (Dis)Citizenship Vaidehi Ramanathan,2013-08-07 This volume explores the concept of citizenship and argues that it should be understood both as a process of becoming and the ability to participate fully rather than as a status that can be inherited acquired or achieved From a courtroom in Bulawayo to a nursery in Birmingham the authors use local contexts to foreground how the vulnerable particularly those from minority language backgrounds continue to be excluded whilst offering a powerful demonstration of the potential for change offered by individual agency resistance and struggle In addressing questions such as under what local conditions does dis citizenship happen what role do language policies and pedagogic practices play and what kinds of margins and borders keep humans from fully participating The chapters in this volume shift the debate away from visas and passports to more uncertain and contested spaces of interpretation

Chinese Language Narration Allyssa McCabe,Chien-ju Chang,2013-11-15 Chinese Language Narration Culture cognition and emotion is a collection of papers presenting original research on narration in Mandarin especially as it contrasts to what is known regarding narration in English One chapter addresses dinner table conversation between Chinese immigrant parents and children in the United States compared to non immigrant peers Other chapters consider evaluation patterns in Mandarin versus English referencing strategies coherence patterns socioeconomic differences among Taiwanese Mandarin speaking children and differences in narration due to Specific Language Impairment and schizophrenia Several chapters address developmental concerns Distinctive aspects of narration in Mandarin are linked to larger issues of autobiographical memory Mandarin is spoken by far more people than any other language yet narration in this language has received notably less attention than narration in Western languages This collective effort is a critical addition to our understanding of cross cultural similarities and differences in how people make sense of experiences through narrative development that views memory as a continuous process of growth and loss over the human lifespan rather than as a series of separate periods. Until recently the vast majority of memory research used only university students and other young adults as subjects. Although such research successfully introduced new methodologies and theoretical concepts it created a bias in our understanding of the lifespan development of memory. This book signals a departure from young adult centered research. It views the lifespan development of memory as a continuous process of growth and loss where each phase of development raises unique questions favoring distinct research methods and theoretical approaches. Drawing on a broad range of investigative strategies the book lays the foundation for a comprehensive understanding of the lifespan development of human memory. Topics include the childhood and adulthood development of working memory, episodic and autobiographical memory and prospective memory as well as the breakdown of memory functions in Alzheimer's disease. Of particular interest is the rich diversity of approaches, methods and theories. The book takes an interdisciplinary perspective drawing on work from psychology, psychiatry, gerontology and biochemistry.

Narrative Development Michael Bamberg, 2012-11-12

Growing out of an International Society of the Study of Behavioral Development sponsored symposium this book discusses the basic assumptions that led the contributors to conduct research in the field of narrative development. This collection gathers their research reflections and varying approaches to narrative and its development. It illustrates each type of approach and highlights their respective motives. The book presents some of the basic motivating assumptions of each approach and provides insight into what holds each set of assumptions together, potentially transforming them into actions. This book will serve as an excellent text for courses emphasizing multiple approaches to the study of narrative. The editor has organized this volume in accordance with the six main points of the symposium: Specification of the Domain: how narratives are defined in terms of textual structures, knowledge thereof, interactive moves, sociocultural conventions and the like; The Individual's Involvement in the Developmental Process: the relationship between some internal or external forces and the organism's own active participation in the developmental process; The Course of Development: if it is continuous or discontinuous, whether it proceeds in an additive fashion or whether regressive phases occur and what changes at different points in the developmental process signify; The Goal of Development: the implicit notion of a telos, a target or end point that needs to occur in the developmental process; Mechanisms of Development: the forces and/or conditions that both instigate the developmental process and keep it moving toward its telos; Methodology: where and how to look in the establishment of a developmental framework. This book is an indispensable text in the fields of narrative and/or discourse linguistics, language studies, psychology and education in general.

Processing interclausal Relationships Jean Costermans, Michel Fayol, 2014-03-18

During the last 10 years more and more linguistic and psycholinguistic research has been devoted to the study of discourse and written texts. Much of this research deals with the markers that underline the connections and the breaks between clauses and sentences, plus the use of these markers by adults and children in the production and comprehension of oral and written material In this volume major observations and theoretical views from both sides of the Atlantic are brought together to appeal to a wide range of linguists psychologists and speech therapists The volume presents contributions from researchers interested specifically in adult language and from others concerned with developmental aspects of language Some contributors deal primarily with production whereas others concentrate on comprehension Some direct their attention to oral discourse while others focus on written texts To preserve overall coherence however the contributors were given the following recommendations With regard to the level of linguistic analysis the emphasis should be on the clause level more particularly on the relationships between clauses Special emphasis should also be placed on linguistic markers e g connectives markers of segmentation punctuation An overview of a given field of research should be offered and current research should be put into perspective For contributors in the developmental field attention should be paid to the fact that an account of the acquisition of some language functions throughout childhood should be included only if general principles of interclause relations that might be masked by the exclusive examination of adult evidence could be derived from it Merrill-Palmer Quarterly ,2006 American Journal of Speech-language Pathology ,1994
